Supporting Hog Prices Said To Be Harmful

Benson Warns Farmer He Believes Plan To Do Virtually No Good

AUSTIN, Minn. (P)—Secretary of Agriculture Benson told farmers today a government program to buy hogs at supported prices "would hurt you more than it would ever help you."

Benson reiterated on the second day of a swing through the Midwest hog belt that the U.S. government is stepping up its pork-buying program, but that it won't purchase and store vast quantities of meat products to bolster prices.

"There are those who because of ignorance of the problem, mistaken judgment or for well-intentioned political purposes insist that your government go into the livestock buying business," the secretary told the Minnesota-Iowa Swing Producers Assn.

"This won't work," he said. "In my judgment such action would hurt you more than it would ever help you."

Benson said he has been told a program to purchase live hogs and cattle at supported prices "would be good politics, particularly in an election year."

"IF WE WERE to raise the price of hogs 5 cents a pound as some suggest, it would cost the government almost a billion dollar a year," he said. "That's just for hogs."

"And, of course, we could hardly deny similar supports to cattle. If we add 5 cents a pound to cattle, it would cost another 1 1/4 billion dollars."

"Then I'm sure you can imagine the delegations of broiler growers, turkey growers and others who would descend upon us."

If the money and manpower were available, he said, and the government began a direct program for buying livestock, these things would happen:

1. "Pressure would develop for uniform pricing without proper regard for differences in quality. You would be encouraged to produce overfat hogs that would build barriers against your product."

"You would lose your market for pork; it would be mighty hard to get it back."

2. "It would, of course, stimulate more production. The added hog numbers would soon mean that the government would have to step in and control hog production. Then government would have to ration your right to raise hogs."

He said the government will do this to help the hog farmer:

"We will use every resource to develop outlets for pork, and we'll purchase to the limit of all available outlets to bolster hog prices."

To the average person the origin of "trail blazing" may be a little hazy but it played an important part in the settling of Fayette County and the heavily wooded sections of Ohio generally when the first white men came into this community as early as 1704, or more than 250 years ago.

Trail blazing consisted of cutting away the bark on trees, leaving the white sap or tree trunk visible, in order to chart a path through the trackless forests of the early days.

By cutting away the bark on trees at short intervals, it was possible for the man who did it to go over the same trail again without difficulty or for others to follow the trail thus made through the forest.

In many instances small saplings were cut partly off near the blazed trees, and pressed over until they pointed in the direction of the next blazed tree.

Trail blazing is now generally spoken of as leadership in some new field of endeavor, leading the way for others to follow.

However, there were some trails in Fayette County long before white men came to blaze his way through the dense woods.

The first trails were made by buffaloes and other wild animals, and later by Indians. The Indians invariably followed single file, the well worn paths through the woods and particularly along streams.

One of these main Indian trails was north and south along Rattlesnake Creek.

Members Of Four Lions Clubs In County Get Together Here

MEMBERS FROM the four Lions clubs in Fayette County gathered Tuesday night at the Country Club for a dinner meeting. The four presidents of the clubs are (left to right) Gordon Cowdery of Bloomingburg, Earl Rea of Good Hope, Dustin Gorton of Washington C. H. and Eldon Long of Jeffersonville. There were 150 Lions and guests at the meeting. (Record-Herald photo)

The Lions really roared at Washington C. H. Country Club Tuesday evening. The reason was the four-club meeting of all the Lions clubs in Fayette County.

The Good Hope organization, now just two months old, was welcomed as the newest club in the county and 19 members were present. Earl Rea is the president.

Bloomingburg, chartered in 1949 with Gordon Cowdery the president, reported in with 23 members present.

Jeffersonville, chartered in 1947, had eight members present. Eldon Long is the current president.

The Washington C. H. club, serving as the host had 83 members and two guests there. The guests were George Lindberg with Don Gibson and Kermit Hankins, a member of the Sedalia Club and long active in Lions club work and well known in the county.

President Dustin Gorton of the Washington C. H. club conducted the meeting which outside of a few announcements was devoted to the get-together.

Gorton did announce that a contest would get underway immediately to select a name for the four club group. He asked the presidents of the individual clubs to select a committee of three to select the name.

SPEAKER AT the banquet was Rev. Harold L. Yochum, president of Capital University in Columbus. An ordained Lutheran minister he is the author of two books, active in the central Ohio and national councils of Boy Scouts and widely known as a speaker.

His topic at the banquet was "The Three R's of Good Citizenship."

Listing as the first R our "rights," Rev. Yochum explained this as all the rights we have as citizens of this country, such as, our "rights" of freedom of speech, freedom of the press, right to a fair trial and right to vote and choose the officials to administer our local, state and national offices.

The second R, he said, stood for "responsibilities." It is our duty to accept our responsibilities and discharge them. We should accept our responsibilities to vote, obey the laws, make decisions, cooperate with the schools, churches and homes.

The third R was for "reverence" which the speaker said meant we should have reverence for our country, flag, and fellow mankind.

In conclusion Dr. Yochum said "if we continue to have great reverence of high ideals the future of this country can be saved. Those countries that have been destroyed were lost because the people lost their reverence."

Dr. Yochum was introduced by Robert Terhune, chairman of the program committee.

Announcement was made by John Breiner chairman of the 1956 Lions Club Minstrel that the show will be held on Feb. 28 in the high school auditorium. Rehearsals will be held every Sunday at 2 P. M. and Wednesdays at 7 P. M. in the Dayton Power & Light Co. auditorium. He said there also would be a rehearsal following the next meeting at the Country Club on Feb. 1.

All members of the club were asked to take part in the 1956 show.

Blustery Chill Swirls Eastward

(By The Associated Press)

A blustery snow storm, worst of the winter in parts of the Midwest, swirled eastward from the mid-continent today.

Some schools closed in parts of Iowa and Missouri as the storm hit and gathered force.

Southwest Iowa had 8 inches of snow by early morning and the storm was expected to continue through tomorrow. The storm was the biggest of the winter in Iowa.

A subzero chill locked in the intermountain and Rocky mountain areas. New Meadows, Idaho, had a low of -45. Big Piney, Wyo., was -40; Woodruff, Utah, -38 and Fraser, Colo., -23.

Perrill Is Candidate for Legislature

Virgil Perrill, who has represented Fayette County in the state Legislature has taken the first step toward seeking reelection.

Late Tuesday, Rep. Perrill filed his petition as a candidate for the Republican nomination at the May primary election.

There was nothing to indicate that he will have any opposition from within his own party, but Frank Weade has taken out nominating petitions for the Democratic primary in May.

Rep. Perrill, a native and lifelong resident of Fayette County grew up on the farm and has made farming his business ever since. He manages several thousands of acres of farmland in the county and has said that he feels this gives him a better understanding of the farm problems that come before the Legislature and the basis for a practical approach to their solutions.

Along this line, he had a hand in terminating the Scioto-Sandusky Conservancy District and the levy against Fayette County (and eight other counties) farms to sup-

County Board Approves Plan Amid Turmoil

Another Phase Of Ruckus May Break Out Later

A plan to transfer a belt of territory around Washington C. H. from the Miami Trace School District to the Washington C. H. School District was approved by the County Board of Education just before midnight Tuesday.

The resolution approving the transfer must now go to the Washington C. H. school board for acceptance or rejection. If the transfer is accepted, that will end that phase of the complicated school district ruckus.

However, there is another phase that holds promise of fireworks. This hinges on the petitions for the transfer of a larger contiguous territory from the Miami Trace District to the Washington C. H. District.

These petitions — 18 of them — were filed with W. J. Hilty, the superintendent of the county schools and the clerk of the county board of education which has the final say-so, about 5 o'clock Tuesday evening.

THE DEADLINE for transfer of territory from one district to another was midnight Tuesday. After that time transfer by petition, except in special cases, could not be made until January of 1958. Under the law transfer of petition can be made only during January of the even-numbered years.

It was the approach of this deadline without approval of the transfer plan by the county board that triggered the petitions for contiguous territory, one of the petitioning group said Wednesday.

The petitions were filed by James McWilliams and Archie McCullough. With them when they handed the petitions to Hilty was Attorney F. Scott Zimmerman, the legal counsel of the petitioners.

Mrs. C. E. Rhoad, one of the moving spirits in petitioning for the extended transfer, said the 297 signatures on the petitions represented 82 percent of the voters in the territory pictured on the map that was attached to the petitions.

Hilty said Wednesday morning an unofficial check of the petitions made at the County Board meeting Tuesday night showed only 53 percent valid signatures.

This estimate, he said, was arrived at by checking the names on the petitions and that it also took into consideration the 91 signers of the counter-petitions which were circulated to get the signers of the original petition to withdraw their names from it.

THE PLAN for transferring the belt of territory around Washington C. H. to that district from the Miami Trace district was worked out at a series of meetings of the Miami Trace Board and the Washington C. H. Board, sometimes at separate meetings and sometimes together.

Extension Service Workshop Here

EXTENSION SERVICE personnel from 22 counties in southwestern Ohio listen as Gordon Ryder (above, far right) speaks on determining a land-use plan at a workshop session here Tuesday. Washington C. H. played host Tuesday and Wednesday to the county extension agents, associate agents and home demonstration agents and Ohio State University faculty taking part in the workshop on farm and home development.

County Extension agents, home demonstration and associate agents from 22 southwestern Ohio counties were guests Tuesday and Wednesday of Washington C. H. and the Extension Service here.

The visitors were taking part in a two-day workshop on farm and home development. This is the second session of the workshop; the first session was held in split sections in London and Wilmington.

The 63 men and women attending the meetings included about ten members of the Ohio State University faculty, experts on various aspects of agriculture.

The two morning sessions, held in the Farm Bureau auditorium, were chaired by C. W. Young, assistant 4-H leader for the state. The afternoon sessions were directed by Miss Katherine Brittingham, state home economics advisor.

The meeting included sessions on developing land use, livestock, family living, management and building plans.

Other topics taken up were "Possibilities of a group approach in farm and home development."

"The role of an agent as a counselor," "Questions and problems on conducting farm and home development" and "Future plans and needs."

Several possible measures for peacemaking in the Israeli-Arab dispute are understood to have been considered.

THESE INCLUDE a new public declaration stressing the vital importance of peace, and a reassertion of a British-French-American agreement, first proclaimed five years ago. It contemplates action against either side which launched a new aggression.

The two-power talks, which began Monday, are scheduled to end with a White House session late this afternoon. Officials said a final summary statement would be issued promptly.

In two days of discussion the British and American government chiefs and their foreign ministers have aired problems and disagreements ranging from Europe to the Far East. They have touched also on such matters as general cold war strategy and plans for further U. N. disarmament efforts.

Indications are that basic policy differences between Britain and the United States on Red China and on some other issues have not been resolved.

Eisenhower is understood to have urged Eden to stand firm in support of present political and economic sanctions against Communist China. In particular, he has sought British agreement to keep the issue of seating Red China in the U. N. in suspense.

Britain recognizes Red China; the United States does not. For several years the British have agreed to help stall Russian proposals to displace Nationalist China in the U. N. This has kept Britain and the United States from pulling apart openly.

The British, on the other hand, are understood to have pressed for a relaxation of restrictions on trade with Red China.

Ohio Beef Council Granted Charter

COLUMBUS (P)—The Ohio Beef Council, Inc., today obtained a non-profit corporation charter from Secretary of State Ted W. Brown.

Trustees said the organization was formed to "unify all segments of the cattle and beef industry in the state of Ohio in a coordinated effort to best promote beef production and consumption in the state."

Ike, Eden Nearing Conference End

WASHINGTON (P)—President Eisenhower and British Prime Minister Eden are winding up their talks today amid signs they will call for an all-out effort to make peace in the Middle East.

U. S. officials tended to discount the idea of employing troops under United Nations auspices to keep the peace, although spokesmen said the two leaders and their advisers discussed the possibility yesterday and left it open for further consideration.

The Britons advanced the suggestion that the U. N. be asked to put a force into the demilitarized zone between hostile Israeli and Arab forces, restrained now by an uneasy truce.

Eisenhower and Secretary of State Dulles were described as cool to the proposal.

Problems of the tense, oil-rich Middle East have had a top place in the talks because of Soviet moves to build Communist influence there.

Several possible measures for peacemaking in the Israeli-Arab dispute are understood to have been considered.

Billy Daniels Arrested In Shooting Case

NEW YORK (P)—Singer Billy Daniels was charged last night with shooting and wounding a man in an after-hours bottle club in Harlem.

Daniels, a Negro who gave his age as 40, said he remembered nothing about any shooting. He was released in $2,500 bail for a hearing today on charges of felonious assault and illegal possession of a pistol.

The crooner's arrest and detention for several hours kept him from appearing at the Copacabana night club, where he said he had been getting $10,000 a week.

Daniels has been a top-flight entertainer ever since he won fame a number of years ago with his rendition of "That Old Black Magic."

Police investigating the shooting of James Jackson, a 33-year-old prizefighter trainer, were apparently led to Daniels by an anonymous tip. Jackson was found on the sidewalk outside the Harlem club Tuesday morning with a bullet wound in his left shoulder.

Jackson, a Negro, was treated at a hospital, where the wound was found to be not serious. He refused to tell police who shot him.

After his release on bail, Daniels' told reporters: "I could really use that 'Old Black Magic' now."

Norway Seizes 14 Vessels In Fishing Areas

Scandinavian Nation Says Craft Penetrate Inside Her Territory

LONDON (P)—Russia today demanded the release of Russian trawlers seized by Norway on charges of fishing illegally inside Norwegian territorial waters.

Moscow radio said the Soviet government regarded the whole affair as "a misunderstanding" but stood firm in denying the Russian ships were trawling in Norwegian waters.

Norway has sent navy torpedo boats and the frigate Tromsø to the herring fishing waters off Alesund on the northwest coast and seized 14 Soviet fishing boats in the last three days.

The Norwegian Foreign Ministry has instructed the Norwegian Embassy in Moscow to protest that the Russians were invading the four-mile limit.

The Norwegians have reported a Russian fishing fleet of 30 to 80 ships hovering off the territorial waters and venturing within the four-mile limit whenever the Norwegian naval ships were out of sight.

THE NORWEGIAN press said the Russian maneuvers appeared to be conducted on an organized and deliberate basis.

The Moscow broadcast replied: "Soviet fishing craft are equipped with apparatus for determining their exact position and, as the captains of the detained vessels reported at the time of their detention, the craft were outside Norwegian territorial waters."

Moscow radio broke into a concert on its home service to make the announcement.

Foreign Minister Halvard Lange hurried home from the Nordic Council meeting in Copenhagen to summon Soviet Ambassador G. P. Arkadiev to his office. Lange instructed his embassy in Moscow to deliver a sharp protest to the Soviet foreign minister.

Captains of the seized Soviet trawlers were taken to police headquarters in Alesund for questioning. All but one refused to talk while they waited for a representative from the Soviet Embassy in Oslo.

Reports from Alesund said between 20 and 80 Russian trawlers were in the fleet.

McMullen Gets Life Sentence In Troy Trial

TROY, Ohio (P)—Edward A. McMullen, convicted last night of first degree murder, will appeal for a new trial, his attorney said.

McMullen, 29-year-old truck driver from nearby Frankfort, was found guilty of the holdup slaying of Cleveland Chiple, 67, a Troy used furniture dealer. Common Pleas Judge David S. Porter sentenced McMullen to life imprisonment.

Chiple was shot to death in his store Dec. 27, 1954 and robbed of about $1,100, according to police.

Cecil G. Maddy, 28-year-old Greenfield bartender, also has been indicted for first degree murder in the slaying, but his trial date has not been set.

A jury of eight women and four men returned the verdict against McMullen but recommended mercy. They deliberated three hours.

McMullen took the verdict without any apparent emotion except for a scowl. His mother and wife cried. He replied "no" when asked if he had anything to say before sentencing.

Judge Porter explained to jurors that McMullen could be paroled in 20 years if the governor commutes the sentence.

Defense Atty. William M. Dixon of Troy said grounds for filing motion for a new trial have not been discussed.

Dixon, in his closing argument, said Maddy's wife, Ella Mae, was trying to get her husband and McMullen out of the way when she testified the defendant had admitted the slaying to her.

The Lions really roared at Washington C. H. Country Club Tuesday evening. The reason was the four-club meeting of all the Lions clubs in Fayette County.

The Good Hope organization, now just two months old, was welcomed as the newest club in the county and 19 members were present. Earl Rea is the president.

Bloomingburg, chartered in 1949 with Gordon Cowdrey the president, reported in with 23 members present.

SPEAKER AT the banquet was Rev. Harold L. Yochum, president of Capital University in Columbus. An ordained Lutheran minister he is the author of two books, active in the central Ohio and national councils of Boy Scouts and widely known as a speaker.

His topic at the banquet was "The Three R's of Good Citizenship."

Listing as the first R our "rights," Rev. Yochum explained this as all the rights we have as citizens of this country, such as our "rights" of freedom of speech, freedom of the press, right to a fair trial and right to vote and choose the officials to administer our local, state and national offices.

The second R, he said, stood for "responsibilities." It is our duty to accept our responsibilities and discharge them. We should accept our responsibilities to vote, obey the laws, make decisions, cooperate with the schools, churches and homes.

The third R was for "reverence" which the speaker said meant we should have reverence for our country, flag, and fellow mankind.

In conclusion Dr. Yochum said "if we continue to have great reverence of high ideals the future of this country can be saved. Those countries that have been destroyed were lost because the people lost their reverence."

Dr. Yochum was introduced by Robert Terhune, chairman of the program committee.

Announcement was made by John Breiner chairman of the 1956 Lions Club Minstrel that the show will be held on Feb. 28 in the high school auditorium. Rehearsals will be held every Sunday at 2 P. M. and Wednesdays at 7 P. M. in the Dayton Power & Light Co. auditorium. He said there also would be a rehearsal following the next meeting at the Country Club on Feb. 1.

All members of the club were asked to take part in the 1956 show.

Britain recognizes Red China; the United States does not. For several years the British have agreed to help stall Russian proposals to displace Nationalist China in the U. N. This has kept Britain and the United States from pulling apart openly.

The British, on the other hand, are understood to have pressed for a relaxation of restrictions on trade with Red China.

Ohio Beef Council Granted Charter

COLUMBUS (P)—The Ohio Beef Council, Inc., today obtained a non-profit corporation charter from Secretary of State Ted W. Brown.

Trustees said the organization was formed to "unify all segments of the cattle and beef industry in the state of Ohio in a coordinated effort to best promote beef production and consumption in the state."

Billy Daniels Arrested In Shooting Case

NEW YORK (P)—Singer Billy Daniels was charged last night with shooting and wounding a man in an after-hours bottle club in Harlem.

Daniels, a Negro who gave his age as 40, said he remembered nothing about any shooting. He was released in $2,500 bail for a hearing today on charges of felonious assault and illegal possession of a pistol.

The crooner's arrest and detention for several hours kept him from appearing at the Copacabana night club, where he said he had been getting $10,000 a week.

Daniels has been a top-flight entertainer ever since he won fame a number of years ago with his rendition of "That Old Black Magic."

Police investigating the shooting of James Jackson, a 33-year-old prizefighter trainer, were apparently led to Daniels by an anonymous tip. Jackson was found on the sidewalk outside the Harlem club Tuesday morning with a bullet wound in his left shoulder.

Jackson, also a Negro, was treated at a hospital, where the wound was found to be not serious. He refused to tell police who shot him.

After his release on bail, Daniels' told reporters: "I could really use that 'Old Black Magic' now."

Norway Seizes 14 Vessels In Fishing Areas

Scandinavian Nation Says Craft Penetrate Inside Her Territory

LONDON (P)—Russia today demanded the release of Russian trawlers seized by Norway on charges of fishing illegally inside Norwegian territorial waters.

Moscow radio said the Soviet government regarded the whole affair as "a misunderstanding" but stood firm in denying the Russian ships were trawling in Norwegian waters.

Norway has sent navy torpedo boats and the frigate Tromsøe to the herring fishing waters off Alesund on the northwest coast and seized 14 Soviet fishing boats in the last three days.

The Norwegian Foreign Ministry has instructed the Norwegian Embassy in Moscow to protest that the Russians were invading the four-mile limit whenever the Norwegian naval ships were out of sight.

The Norwegians have reported a Russian fishing fleet of 30 to 80 ships hovering off the territorial waters and venturing within the four-mile limit whenever the Norwegian naval ships were out of sight.

THE NORWEGIAN press said the Russian maneuvers appeared to be conducted on an organized and deliberate basis.

The Moscow broadcast replied: "Soviet fishing craft are equipped with apparatus for determining their exact position and, as the captains of the detained vessels reported at the time of their detention, the craft were outside Norwegian territorial waters."

Moscow radio broke into a concert on its home service to make the announcement.

Foreign Minister Halvard Lange hurried home from the Nordic Council meeting in Copenhagen to surround Soviet Ambassador G. P. Arkadiev to his office. Lange instructed his embassy in Moscow to deliver a sharp protest to the Soviet foreign minister.

Captains of the seized Soviet trawlers were taken to police headquarters in Alesund for questioning. All but one refused to talk while they waited for a representative from the Soviet Embassy in Oslo.

Reports from Alesund said between 30 and 80 Russian trawlers were in the fleet.

McMullen Gets Life Sentence In Troy Trial

TROY, Ohio (P)—Edward A. McMullen, convicted last night of first degree murder, will appeal for a new trial, his attorney said.

McMullen, 29-year-old truck driver from nearby Frankfort, was found guilty of the holdup slaying of Cleveland Chipley, 67, a Troy used furniture dealer. Common Pleas Judge David S. Porter sentenced McMullen to life imprisonment.

Chipley was shot to death in his store Dec. 27, 1954 and robbed of about $1,100, according to police.

Cecil G. Maddy, 28-year-old Greenfield bartender, also has been indicted for first degree murder in the slaying, but his trial date has not been set.

A jury of eight women and four men returned the verdict against McMullen but recommended mercy. They deliberated three hours.

McMullen took the verdict without any apparent emotion except for a scowl. His mother and wife cried. He replied "no" when asked if he had anything to say before sentencing.

Judge Porter explained to jurors that McMullen could be paroled in 20 years if the governor commutes the sentence.

Defense Atty. William M. Dixon of Troy said grounds for filing motion for a new trial have not been discussed.

Dixon, in his closing argument, said Maddy's wife, Ella Mae, was trying to get her husband and McMullen out of the way when she testified the defendant had admitted the slaying to her.

Watch Returned

COLUMBUS (P)—Fifteen years ago, John Blackburn, now of Alexandria, had his 17-jewel pocket watch stolen in a Columbus burglary. Yesterday, detectives located the watch in a routine check of pawn shops. Blackburn got it back.

Rep. Virgil Perrill

Perrill Is Candidate for Legislature

Virgil Perrill, who has represented Fayette County in the state Legislature has taken the first step toward seeking reelection.

Late Tuesday, Rep. Perrill filed his petition as a candidate for the Republican nomination at the May primary election.

There was nothing to indicate that he will have any opposition from within his own party, but Frank Weade has taken out nomination petitions for the Democratic primary in May.

Rep. Perrill, a native and life-long resident of Fayette County grew up on the farm and has made farming his business ever since. He manages several thousands of acres of farmland in the county and has said that he feels this gives him a better understanding of the farm problems that come before the Legislature and the basis for a practical approach to their solutions.

Along this line, he had a hand in terminating the Scioto-Sandusky Conservancy District and the levy against Fayette County (and eight other counties) farms to support it. He also was a leader in the fight for an amendment to the state code concerning the tax on grain stored under government loan; that amendment, which was designed to eliminate the tax, was approved by the Legislature, but the state Tax Department insists the amendment was not sufficiently specific and has notified county auditors to collect it this year with other personal property taxes. Rep. Perrill has said it was the intention of the Legislature to eliminate the tax.

Rep. Perrill has never made a spectacular campaign and said he had no intention of doing that this year. Rather, he is standing on his record in the Legislature, his experience in law-making and his close relationship to agriculture, the chief industry of Fayette County.

Since soon after he was sworn in as a legislator, he was given two major committee assignments: to the committee on agriculture, of which he is now the chairman and the committee on financial institutions.

Socialist OK'd By Assembly As French Premier

Leftist, Non-Commie
Cabinet Expected To
Last About 3 Months

PARIS (AP)—France's first Socialist premier since 1947 took over the government today, heading a non-Communist leftist coalition pledged to prompt negotiations to end the costly Algerian conflict.

The chamber's 151 Communists gave their votes to Mollet to pressure him for the "popular front" tieup they seek with the Socialists. To counter this, the Catholic MRP (Popular Republican Movement) and other moderate groups voted with Mollet's Republican Front of Socialists and Radicals, and most rightists abstained. This gave the new premier a majority of those voting without the Reds.

The Republican Front, which Mollet leads jointly with Radical party leader Pierre Mendes-France actually has only about 180 votes in the 596-member assembly. Because of this the government is generally expected to last only about three months.

THE PREMIER'S streamlined 13-man Cabinet includes seven Socialists, three Radicals, one non-party man and two others from splinter groups. Mendes-France is deputy premier without control of any ministry.

In outlining his policy before the vote, Mollet called for a new, freely elected Algerian assembly whose leaders could negotiate a new "unbreakable" relationship with France.

In line with his promise to work urgently and personally to halt the fighting in the North African territory, he is expected to fly to Algiers soon.

Continued fighting across the Mediterranean underlined the urgency of new negotiations.

Seventy-six rebels were killed in scattered battles yesterday, including 20 in a clash in the Aures Mountains. French casualties were not announced.

The premier's policy statement also promised to strengthen the six-nation Western European Union and the North Atlantic Alliance as keys to peace and liberty.

8 Churchmen Plan Russian Exchange Visit

Americans To Journey
To Moscow in March;
Soviets Here in June

NEW YORK (AP)—An eight-member delegation of American Protestant leaders was named today to make a 10-day visit to Russia in an effort to increase "mutual understanding." It will be the most broadly representative church contact with religion in Russia in 40 years.

The group will go under sponsorship of the National Council of Churches, the nation's largest religious agency. It includes 30 Protestant and Eastern Orthodox denominations with 35 1/2 million members.

The trip, to begin March 9, will be the first part of a two-way exchange, with Russian Orthodox church leaders coming to this country in June.

Heading the Americans group will be the Rt. Rev. Henry Knox Sherrill, presiding bishop of the Protestant Episcopal Church; the Rev. Dr. Franklin Clark Fry, president of the United Lutheran Church, and Dr. Eugene Carson Blake, administrator of the Presbyterian Church in the U. S. A.

Not since the Communists seized power in Russia, in the Bolshevik Revolution in 1917, has such a widely embracing interchange visit in that country been attempted.

After conferences with Secretary of State Dulles, the exchanges were scheduled.

School Transfer

at joint meetings, during the past six weeks.

This was the plan that the County Board approved Tuesday night by a resolution that was passed unanimously and sent to the Washington C. H. Board for its consideration.

Robert Terhune, the president of the Washington C. H. board, said Wednesday that the board would take up the matter of the transfer at its next regular meeting next Monday evening.

Members of the county school board, all of whom voted for the transfer, are Cloyd Craig, Hugh B. Sollars, Nathaniel Tway, Carroll Ritenour and H. B. Lightle.

Also at the meeting were two members of the Miami Trace Board, Taylor Groff, the president, J. Herbert Perrill, Gordon Cowdery and Richard Snyder.

Regardless of what action the Washington C. H. Board takes Monday, Mrs. Rhoad said Wednesday morning that "we (petitioners for the larger territory transfer) are going to carry this thing on to the state Department of Education. . . it's a matter of principle."

She added that the petitioners felt the counter petitions with the 91 names (those asking to withdraw from the original petition) "have no legal status" and added that "we will challenge their legality, too."

HILTY, as clerk of the county board, said Wednesday morning that it probably would take two or three weeks to check the legality of the signatures on the petitions to determine whether there were 75 percent of the voters in the specified area on them. He said the county board would name a committee of representatives from both factions to check the petitions. If 75 percent of the voters signed the transfer petitions, Hilty said the county and city boards could effect transfer or the case could be taken to the state school board for a hearing and decision.

The resolution approving the transfer plan worked out by the Miami Trace and Washington C. H. board that was passed by the County Board Tuesday night contained two key clauses:

(1) The revised code of Ohio provides that in case of such transfer, an equitable division of the funds and indebtedness between the districts involved shall be made by the Fayette County Board of Education and

(2) The property tax valuation of the Miami Trace District is $39,321,493; and the property tax valuation in the territory hereby transferred is approximately $2,000,000 or approximately 5 percent of the total.

TERRITORY included in the transfer (map in Tuesday's Record-Herald) approved by the county board is bounded by:

Between the boundary described below and the corporate limit of Washington C. H. lies that territory which the Miami Trace Board of Education proposes to be transferred to the City of Washington School District.

Legal Ruling Given On Citizens Panel

COLUMBUS (AP)—Atty. Gen. C. William O'Neill ruled today that statute provides that a citizens' committee must be composed of nine or more members and that no school district in a county may have more than three representatives on such a committee.

That opinion went to Prosecutor John S. Bath of Fayette County.

The opinion said a county with less than three school districts cannot invoke the statute governing citizens' committees to form such an organization.

Socialist OK'd By Assembly As French Premier

Leftist, Non-Commie
Cabinet Expected To
Last About 3 Months

PARIS (U)—France's first Socialist premier since 1947 took over the governmental reins today, heading a non-Communist leftist coalition pledged to prompt negotiations to end the costly Algerian conflict.

The chamber's 151 Communists gave their votes to Mollet to pressure him for the "popular front" tieup they seek with the Socialists. To counter this, the Catholic MRP (Popular Republican Movement) and other moderate groups voted with Mollet's Republican Front of Socialists and Radicals, and most rightists abstained. This gave the new premier a majority of those voting without the Reds.

The Republican Front, which Mollet leads jointly with Radical party leader Pierre Mendes-France actually has only about 180 votes in the 596-member assembly. Because of this the government is generally conceded a life expectancy of about three months.

THE PREMIER'S streamlined 13-man cabinet includes seven Socialists, three Radicals, one non-party man and two others from splinter groups. Mendes-France is deputy premier without control of any ministry.

In outlining his policy before the vote, Mollet called for a new, freely elected Algerian assembly whose leaders could negotiate a new "unbreakable" relationship with France.

In line with his promise to work urgently and personally to halt the fighting in the North African territory, he is expected to fly to Algiers soon.

Continued fighting across the Mediterranean underlined the urgency of new negotiations.

Seventy-six rebels were killed in scattered battles yesterday, including 20 in a clash in the Aures Mountains. French casualties were not announced.

The premier's policy statement also promised to strengthen the six-nation Western European Union and the North Atlantic Alliance as keys to peace and liberty.

8 Churchmen Plan Russian Exchange Visit

Americans To Journey
To Moscow in March;
Soviets Here in June

NEW YORK (U)—An eight-member delegation of American Protestant leaders was named today to make a 10-day visit to Russia in an effort to increase "mutual understanding." It will be the most broadly representative church contact with religion in Russia in 40 years.

The group will go under sponsorship of the National Council of Churches, the nation's largest religious agency. It includes 30 Protestant and Eastern Orthodox denominations with 35½ million members.

The trip, to begin March 9, will be the first part of a two-way exchange, with Russian Orthodox church leaders coming to this country in June.

Heading the Americans group will be the Rt. Rev. Henry Knox Sherrill, presiding bishop of the Protestant Episcopal Church; the Rev. Dr. Franklin Clark Fry, president of the United Lutheran Church, and Dr. Eugene Carson Blake, administrator of the Presbyterian Church in the U. S. A.

Not since the Communists seized power in Russia, in the Bolshevik Revolution in 1917, has such a widely embracing interchurch visit in that country been attempted.

After conferences with Secretary of State Dulles, the exchanges were scheduled.

School Transfer

at joint meetings, during the past six weeks.

This was the plan that the County Board approved Tuesday night by a resolution that was passed unanimously and sent to the Washington C. H. Board for its consideration.

Robert Terhune, the president of the Washington C. H. Board, said Wednesday that the board would take up the matter of the transfer at its next regular meeting next Monday evening.

Members of the county school board, all of whom voted for the transfer, are Cloyd Craig, Hugh B. Sollars, Nathaniel Tway, Carroll Rittenour and H. B. Lightle.

Also at the meeting were two members of the Miami Trace Board, Taylor Groff, the president, J. Herbert Perrill, Gordon Cowdery and Richard Snyder.

Regardless of what action the Washington C. H. Board takes Monday, Mrs. Rhoad said Wednesday morning that "we (petitioners for the larger territory transfer) are going to carry this thing on to the state Department of Education... it's a matter of principle."

She added that the petitioners felt the counter petitions with the 91 names (those asking to withdraw from the original petition) "have no legal status" and added that "we will challenge their legality, too."

HILTY, as clerk of the county board, said Wednesday morning that it probably would take two or three weeks to check the legality of the signatures on the petitions to determine whether there were 75 percent of the voters in the specified area on them. He said the county board would name a committee of representatives from both factions to check the petitions. If 75 percent of the voters signed the transfer petitions, Hilty said the county and city boards could effect transfer or the case could be taken to the state school board for a hearing and decision.

The resolution approving the transfer plan worked out by the Miami Trace and Washington C. H. board that was passed by the County Board Tuesday night contained two key clauses:

(1) the revised code of Ohio provides that in case of such transfer, an equitable division of the funds and indebtedness between the districts involved shall be made by the Fayette County Board of Education and

(2) the property tax valuation of the Miami Trace District is $39,321,493; and the property tax valuation in the territory hereby transferred is approximately $2,000,000 or approximately 5 percent of the total.

TERRITORY included in the transfer (map in Tuesday's Record-Herald) approved by the county board is bounded by:

Between the boundary described below and the corporate limit of Washington C. H. lies that territory which the Miami Trace Board of Education proposes to be transferred to the City of Washington School District.

LEGAL RULING GIVEN ON CITIZENS PANEL

COLUMBUS (U)—Atty. Gen. C. William O'Neill ruled today that statute provides that a citizens' committee must be composed of nine or more members and that no school district in a county may have more than three representatives on such a committee.

That opinion went to Prosecutor John S. Bath of Fayette County.

The opinion said a county with less than three school districts cannot invoke the statute governing citizens' committees to form such an organization.

"Mary Hawthorth's Mail"

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I have a granddaughter, 19, who needs help, I think. She always has been highstrung. In childhood she and an older sister lived in an atmosphere of fighting and turmoil until their mother (my daughter) got a divorce and married another man, who has turned out to be a good stepfather.

The older sister is married now, and doing fine, but Nina, the 19-year-old, is having awful spells. She goes into rages and insults her mother's company, who all drink some (Nina doesn't like that). She has her own beautiful room, private bath and telephone. She is being spoiled, because the mother feels to blame for the breakup of the first marriage. But had she stayed, there would have been murder. I blame both, not her only.

During the first four years of the second marriage, I kept the little girls. My daughter had said she wanted a new start, and I felt sorry for the children. She wanted a good time and had it. My husband and others didn't want me to keep the children for her, and condemn me for doing so.

Nina is so upset. She breaks things, throws furniture around, and talks terribly to her mother and the good stepfather. She calls me in another city and lies about them (I learn later). She stretches out on the floor and they say, foams at the mouth. She sees her real father, who lives in a nearby town. I try to keep out of it, but I would like your advice for them. Nina is a pretty refined girl and has a good job.

DEAR G. W.: Nina's behavior as described, seems to be a blend of sickness and cussedness. As for her symptom of stretching out on the floor and foaming at the mouth, this may refer to an epileptic seizure; or it may have to do with hysterical expression of frantic fury. Certainly the family ought to get specialist help in diagnosing that detail of her disorder, so as to treat it appropriately.

Nina's malevolent disposition towards her mother and stepfather, who nowadays spoil her, suggests that she is morbidly jealous of their life together; of their having each other, as partners and confidantes and love-companions. Evidently she is trading, senselessly, on a conviction she has acquired, that she was shortchanged of the good life in her early experience. She has a complex about it. She greedily, vengefully wants to be over-compensated for what her parents, but especially her mother, "did" to her.

It seems she feels entitled to the world (of happiness) with a fence around it—obtained at the price of present misery to her mother, to even the score. Very probably she would ruthlessly break up her mother's existing marriage if she could—with no clear notion of why she'd be doing it.

Twofold Plan For Aid
It may be that Nina picked up a lot of derogatory feeling about her mother (in the wake of the marital split) from persons in your environment, who damned the proceedings and talked against your would-be helpfulness. Also possibly your concern for the children took a too-pitying tone at times, and maybe you were especially indulgent of Nina, the younger child—so that her older sister developed more strength, comparatively.

In any case, whatever the inside story, it's plain that Nina's emotional storms at home are malicious and wilful, a by-product of tyrannical undisciplined character. The fact that she holds a good job shows that she does know how to behave. She'd be fired for disturbing the peace at work.

In my opinion, Nina should have psychiatric care; and should be required to dwell apart from her mother's home, as much for the parents' sake as her own. It does her no good to be indulged in wrecking the place, psychologically.

Your School Report Card

By W. A. SMITH
(City School Superintendent)

At this time of the year, students in all of the elementary schools are involved in the traditional paper hearts of St. Valentine's Day (the students in the high school are involved more in the affairs of the human heart rather than paper).

But the students in Mrs. Dorothy Crone's fourth grade class at Eastside School are doing more than just using the traditional red heart to illustrate the meaning of Valentine's Day.

First, they wanted to know more about why the day is celebrated as it is. They found in their reference books that there is little to connect the merriment and festivities of February 14 with the story of St. Valentine, a martyr who died during the third century.

However, they learned that the celebration may be a survival of the ancient Roman festival during which time the names of young women were placed in a box, while the young men drew them out according to chance.

Next, they learned about the plastic hearts that appear on the store counters at this time of year for the collection of funds to carry on research in the diseases of the heart.

And finally they prepared their own merry and beautiful Valentines during their art classes in colors other than the usual red.

Using construction paper, white paper doilies, and paper muffin cups, they made unusual Valentines that are mounted across the top of their chalkboards.
On large hearts cut from construction paper were pasted the white paper doilies. In graduated sizes, three different colored hearts were cut from the muffin cups, and these, with their crimped edges, were tied with gaily colored yarn to the center of the doilies. Using pastel colors of pink, blue, yellow, and green, the resultant Valentines were both beautiful and unusual.

Cleveland Airport Terminal Opens

CLEVELAND — A new $3-million-dollar passenger terminal was in operation at Cleveland Hopkins Airport today.
The terminal was opened one minute before midnight last night, marking the latest phase of a 22-million dollar development program at the airport. It will be dedicated officially April 28.

The start of two airplane hangars, privately financed at a cost of more than four million dollars, will be the next construction phase. Plans also call for raising the 27-year-old administration building to make way for the new terminal's gate 1 position.

Rotary Hears Talk On Present Farm Problem

OSU Professor In Farm Economics Gives Some Explanations

An unusual number of farmer guests and county agricultural agents were present at the Tuesday luncheon of the Rotary Club at the Country Club here, to listen to the address of Prof. Lyle H. Barnes, a specialist in farm management. Barnes is identified with Ohio State University as a professor in the department of agricultural economics and rural sociology.

There were agricultural county agents and assistants from more than 20 counties at a district meeting being held at the Farm Bureau Auditorium, quite a number of whom are Rotarians who took advantage of their visit here to be present at this Rotary gathering.

Prof. Barnes proved an able and pleasing speaker in discussing the nation's farm problems at this time but frankly stated in his opening remarks that he did not come before this group with "some easy solution for this national problem, because I do not have it."

"One thing is certain," he said, "and that is, the government alone cannot solve this entire big question. It can be handled only with the help of the farmers who will have to make some unselfish adjustments and give necessary cooperation. There must be reduced output to make the demand nearer to a balance with production."

He also asserted that this must not become a political football issue.

Ralph Penn, chairman of the January program committee introduced the speaker and in doing so mentioned the fact that 40 percent of the membership of the Washington Rotary Club were farm owners and had a deep interest in hearing this speaker whose experience had been broad and whose efficiency in his line was held in high regard.

PROF. BARNES in his opening remarks declared that agriculture's present position in this country is similar to what it had been on at least two other occasions within the last 38 years. He gave a quick rundown of farm production history and problems over the past two or three decades and said that agriculture's economic position today is quite similar to that in the 1920's.

At that time, he stated, incomes were at record levels within the urban centers, while there was declining prices, high costs and low net returns on the farms. "I want to remind you that our present farm difficulties have been brought about by many of the same factors which caused the problems of those days," he asserted.

At that period there had been war and the post-war demand for unlimited supplies in farm products to win the war, he pointed out. This was followed by inability to adjust production to the level of peacetime demand after the war ended and we could no longer sell our big surplus abroad, or dispose of much of it ourselves, despite full employment in urban localities still trying to fill a big backlog of orders for civilian goods.

HE THEN proceeded to recite a history of the financing of that time which brought new complications into the picture, and further said that except for the personal debt load of many more individuals at that time there were developments following World War II which followed the same general pattern, with farmers restocking their plants and expanding until Europe finally "got back on its feet" and no longer needed or wanted our surplus agricultural products.

Prof. Barnes then reiterated in detail the excellent outlook for industry as a whole and greater wage rates in 1956, with domestic demand strong for agricultural products but with insufficient export demand to keep farm prices high in view of huge production, with the "odds for easing of the 'cost price squeeze' now on the farmer not very encouraging, although there was likely to be some modest improvement in prices and profits of some products. However, he said, our problem of big agricultural surplus will be still with us.

He attributed the farm product price decline to enormous supply in relation to prospect needs, lower price supports which, if increased, could easily cause tax payers to approach a rebellious stage, sharp increases in feed corn supply and in some other farm productions.

"There is only one way out," Prof. Barnes said in closing, "and that is to find a proper method for bringing production in line with effective demand."

President Dougherty responded to the address with high compliments for the speaker and said that of all the talk on this farm problem which he had heard, he believed that the speaker's careful explanation had made it clearer than anything he had heard before.

DURING THE pre-program business session of the club, President Dougherty asked that as many Rotarians as possible go to the Rotary district conference at Cincinnati on Feb. 26 and 27 where, he said, an exceptional program was planned. Dr. Robert Woodmansee is scheduled for a talk at one of the sessions.

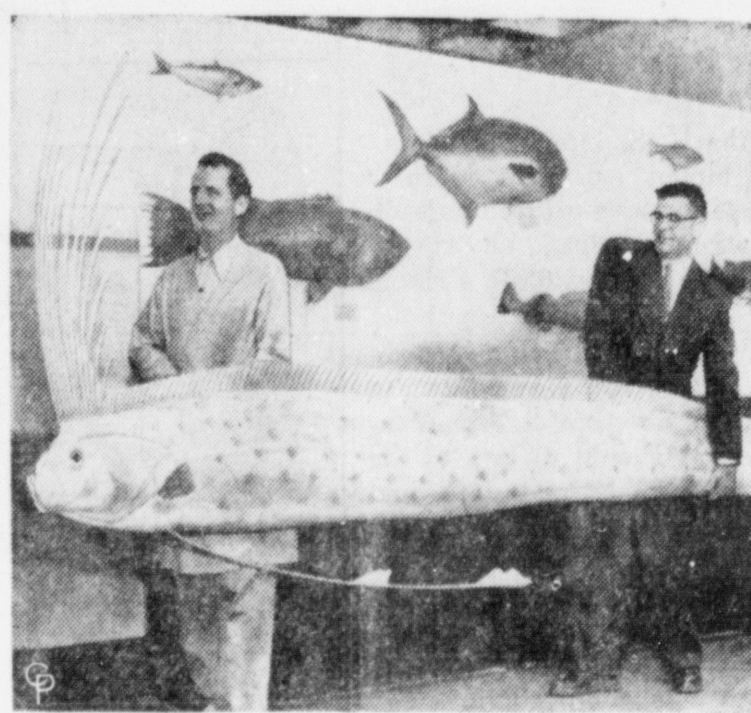

Attention was called to birthdays of Francis Haines and C. E. Rhoad. The latter was absent and the former said he had been called up last week for the same reason, which brought quite a laugh.

Don Wood introduced the three Washington High School student guests for this occasion, Kenneth Stewart, Wayne Rehm and Robert Swackhamer. The latter made a nice response for this group.

ALSO MENTIONED BY President Dougherty was the Rotary Ann Party night the 8th of February. There will be no Rotary meeting next Tuesday.

The program to be presented by the Dayton Boys' Choir on February 21 at the Washington High School auditorium was again brought up and committees were

Springfield Man Held For Slaying

SPRINGFIELD — George E. Price, 41, has been bound to the grand jury without bond after pleading innocent yesterday to a first degree murder charge.

He is accused of fatally shooting Theodore L. Thompson, 23, Sunday following an argument over the seating arrangement in a car. Both men are from Springfield.

State Patrol TV Network Urged

WASHINGTON — The Ohio State Highway Patrol should have a television network, says U. C. Felty, Ohio highway safety director.

Felty, after conferring yesterday with Federal Communications Commission officials, said he will make formal application next week to establish the TV system.

"Our means of police communication," he said, "have not kept pace with the present mode of transmission used by both law-abiding and law-breaking citizens."

The TV system, said Felty, would provide speedy identification of suspects and faster checking of evidence like bad checks. "They use them in the comics," he added, "I don't see why we shouldn't."

Among visiting Rotarians introduced were the following Ohio county agricultural agents, Ber-man Ross, Lebanon; George Gannard, Columbus; R. S. Swenson, Circleville; Ernest Drake, Xenia; E. F. Kuester, Greenville; George E. Wood, Portsmouth; Norman Arnold, Troy; Lowell Douce, Hillsboro; John E. Moore, London.

Other guests were Cliff Hughes, with Paul Dougherty and Ralph Nisley with W. W. Montgomery.

2 Rail Unions Ask Hike In Safety Setup

CLEVELAND — Citing what they call a dangerous upward trend in railroad accidents, two railroad brotherhoods with headquarters here have petitioned the Interstate Commerce Commission for corrective measures.

The two independent unions, which have a combined membership of more than 300,000, blamed increasing injuries among workers on failure of brake inspection and maintenance to keep pace with improvements in other equipment.

H. E. Gilbert, president of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Engineers, and W. P. Kennedy, head of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, signed the petition, which was filed yesterday with the ICC.

"Mary Haworth's Mail"

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I have a granddaughter, 19, who needs help, I think. She always has been highstrung. In childhood she and an older sister lived in an atmosphere of fighting and turmoil until their mother (my daughter) got a divorce and married another man, who has turned out to be a good stepfather.

The older sister is married now, and doing fine, but Nina, the 19-year-old, is having awful spells. She goes into rages and insults her mother's company, who all drink some (Nina doesn't like that). She has her own beautiful room, private bath and telephone. She is being spoiled, because the mother feels to blame for the breakup of the first marriage. But had he stayed, there would have been murder. I blame both, not her only.

During the first four years of the second marriage, I kept the little girls. My daughter had said she wanted a new start, and I felt sorry for the children. She wanted a good time and had it. My husband and others didn't want me to keep the children for her, and condemned me for doing so.

Nina is so upset. She breaks things, throws furniture around, and talks terribly to her mother and the good stepfather. She calls me in another city and lies about them (I learn later). She stretches out on the floor and, they say, foams at the mouth. She sees her real father, who lives in a nearby town. I try to keep out of it, but I would like your advice for them. Nina is a pretty refined girl and has a good job.

G. W.
DEAR G. W.: Nina's behavior, as described, seems to be a blend of sickness and cussedness. As for her symptom of stretching out on the floor and foaming at the mouth, this may refer to an epileptic seizure; or it may have to do with hysterical expression of frantic fury. Certainly the family ought to get specialist help in diagnosing that detail of her disorder, so as to treat it appropriately.

Nina's malevolent disposition towards her mother and stepfather, who nowadays spoil her, suggests that she is morbidly jealous of their life together; of their having each other, as partners and confidantes and love-companions. Evidently she is trading, senselessly, on a conviction she has acquired, that she was shortchanged of the good life in her early experience. She has a complex about it. She greedily, vengefully wants to be over-compensated for what her parents, but especially her mother, "did" to her.

It seems she feels entitled to the world (of happiness) with a fence around it—obtained at the price of present misery to her mother, to even the score. Very probably she would ruthlessly break up her mother's existing marriage if she could—with no clear notion of why she'd be doing it.

Twofold Plan For Aid
It may be that Nina picked up a lot of derogatory feeling about her mother (in the wake of the marital split) from persons in your environment, who damned the proceedings and talked against your mother's helplessness. Also possibly your concern for the children took a too-pitying tone at times, and maybe you were especially indulgent of Nina, the younger child—so that her older sister developed more strength, comparatively.

In any case, whatever the inside story, it's plain that Nina's emotional storms at home are malicious and wilful, a by-product of tyrannical undisciplined character. The fact that she holds a good job shows that she does know how to behave. She'd be fired for disturbing the peace at work.

In my opinion, Nina should have psychiatric care; and should be required to dwell apart from her mother's home, as much for the parents' sake as her own. It does her no good to be indulged in wrecking the place, psychologically.

Your School Report Card

By W. A. SMITH
(City School Superintendent)

At this time of the year, students in all of the elementary schools are involved in the traditional paper hearts of St. Valentine's Day (the students in the high school are involved more in the affairs of the human heart rather than paper).

But the students in Mrs. Dorothy Crone's fourth grade class at Eastside School are doing more than just using the traditional red heart to illustrate the meaning of Valentine's Day.

First, they wanted to know more about why the day is celebrated as it is. They found in their reference books that there is little to connect the merriment and festivities of February 14 with the story of St. Valentine, a martyr who died during the third century.

However, they learned that the celebration may be a survival of the ancient Roman festival during which time the names of young women were placed in a box, while the young men drew them out according to chance.

Next, they learned about the plastic hearts that appear on the store counters at this time of year for the collection of funds to carry on research in the diseases of the heart.

And finally they prepared their own merry and beautiful Valentines during their art classes in colors other than the usual red.

Using construction paper, white paper, doilies, and paper muffin cups, they made unusual Valentines that are mounted across the top of their chalkboards.

On large hearts cut from construction paper were pasted the white paper doilies. In graduated sizes, three different colored hearts were cut from the muffin cups, and these, with their crimped edges, were tied with gaily colored yarn to the center of the doilies. Using pastel colors of pink, blue, yellow, and green, the resultant Valentines were both beautiful and unusual.

Rotary Hears Talk On Present Farm Problem

OSU Professor In Farm Economics Gives Some Explanations

An unusual number of farmer guests and county agricultural agents were present at the Tuesday luncheon of the Rotary Club at the Country Club here, to listen to the address of Prof. Lyle H. Barnes, a specialist in farm management. Barnes is identified with Ohio State University as a professor in the department of agricultural economics and rural sociology.

There were agricultural county agents and assistants from more than 20 counties at a district meeting being held at the Farm Bureau Auditorium, quite a number of whom are Rotarians who took advantage of their visit here to be present at this Rotary gathering.

Prof. Barnes proved an able and pleasing speaker in discussing the nation's farm problems at this time but frankly stated in his opening remarks that he did not come before this group with "some easy solution for this national problem, because I do not have it."

"One thing is certain," he said, "and that is, the government alone cannot solve this entire big question. It can be handled only with the help of the farmers who will have to make some unselfish adjustments and give necessary cooperation. There must be reduced output to make the demand nearer to a balance with production."

He also asserted that this must not become a political football issue.

Ralph Penn, chairman of the January program committee introduced the speaker and in doing so mentioned the fact that 40 percent of the membership of the Washington Rotary Club were farm owners and had a deep interest in hearing this speaker whose experience had been broad and whose efficiency in his line was held in high regard.

PROF. BARNES in his opening remarks declared that agriculture's present position in this country is similar to what it had been on at least two other occasions within the last 38 years. He gave a quick rundown of farm production history and problems over the past two or three decades and said that agriculture's economic position today is quite similar to that in the 1920's.

At that time, he stated, incomes were at record levels within the urban centers, while there was declining prices, high costs and lower net returns on the farms. "I want to remind you that our present farm difficulties have been brought about by many of the same factors which caused the problems of those days," he asserted.

At that period there had been war and the post-war demand for unlimited supplies in farm products to win the war, he pointed out. This was followed by inability to adjust production to the level of peacetime demand after the war ended and we could no longer sell our big surplus abroad, or dispose of much of it ourselves, despite full employment in urban localities still trying to fill a big backlog of orders for civilian goods.

HE THEN proceeded to recite a history of the financing of that time which brought new complications into the picture, and further said that except for the personal debt load of many more individuals at that time there were developments following World War II which followed the same general pattern, with farmers restocking their plants and expanding until Europe finally "got back on its feet" and no longer needed or wanted our surplus agricultural products.

Prof. Barnes then reiterated in detail the excellent outlook for industry as a whole and greater wage rates in 1956, with domestic demand strong for agricultural products but with insufficient export demand to keep farm prices high in view of huge production, with the "odds for easing of the 'cost price squeeze' now on the farmer not very encouraging, although there was likely to be some modest improvement in prices and profits of some products. However, he said, our problem of big agricultural surplus will be still with us.

He attributed the farm product price decline to enormous supply in relation to prospect needs, lower price supports which, if increased, could easily cause tax payers to approach a rebellious stage, sharp increases in feed corn supply and in some other farm productions.

"There is only one way out," Prof. Barnes said in closing, "and that is to find a proper method for bringing production in line with effective demand."

President Dougherty responded to the address with high compliments for the speaker and said that of all the talk on this farm problem which he had heard, he believed that the speaker's careful explanation had made it clearer than anything he had heard before.

DURING THE pre-program business session of the club, President Dougherty asked that as many Rotarians as possible go to the Rotary district conference at Cincinnati on Feb. 26 and 27 where, he said, an exceptional program was planned. Dr. Robert Woodmansee is scheduled for a talk at one of the sessions.

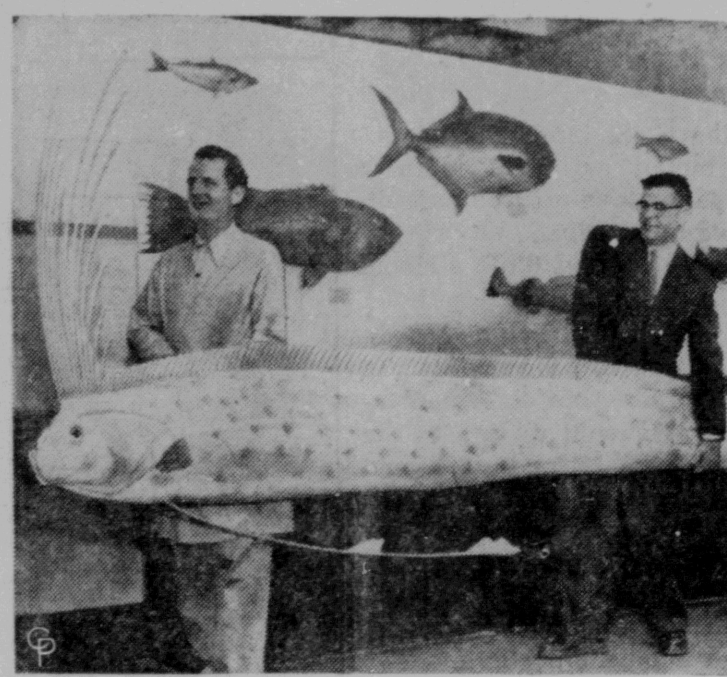

Attention was called to birthdays of Francis Haines and C. E. Rhoad. The latter was absent and the former said he had been called up last week for the same reason, which brought quite a laugh.

Don Wood introduced the three Washington High School student guests for this occasion, Kenneth Stewart, Wayne Rehm and Robert Swackhamer. The latter made a nice response for this group.

ALSO MENTIONED BY President Dougherty was the Rotary Ann Party night the 8th of February. There will be no Rotary meeting next Tuesday.

The program to be presented by the Dayton Boys' Choir on February 21 at the Washington High School auditorium was again brought up and committees were

State Patrol TV Network Urged

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Ohio State Highway Patrol should have a television network, says U. C. Felty, Ohio highway safety director.

Felty, after conferring yesterday with Federal Communications Commission officials, said he will make formal application next week to establish the TV system. "Our means of police communicated," he said, "have not kept pace with the present mode of transmission used by both law-abiding and law-breaking citizens."

The TV system, said Felty, would provide speedy identification of suspects and faster checking of evidence like bad checks. "They use them in the comics," he added. "I don't see why we shouldn't."

Among visiting Rotarians introduced were the following Ohio county agricultural agents, Berman Ross, Lebanon; George Gan-yard, Columbus; R. S. Swenson, Circleville; Ernest Drake, Xenia; E. F. Kuester, Greenville; George E. Wood, Portsmouth; Norman Arnold, Troy; Lowell Douce, Hillsboro; John E. Moore, London.

Other guests were Cliff Hughes, with Paul Dougherty and Ralph Nisley with W. W. Montgomery.

2 Rail Unions Ask Hike In Safety Setup

CLEVELAND (AP)—Citing what they call a dangerous upward trend in railroad accidents, two railroad brotherhoods with headquarters here have petitioned the Interstate Commerce Commission for corrective measures.

The two independent unions, which have a combined membership of more than 300,000, blamed increasing injuries among workers on failure of brake inspection and maintenance to keep pace with improvements in other equipment.

H. E. Gilbert, president of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Engineers, and W. P. Kennedy, head of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, signed the petition, which was filed yesterday with the ICC.

Their joint petition resulted from separate investigations they conducted into the recent wreck of a commuter train at Los Angeles in which 29 persons were killed.

Gilbert and Kennedy said the ratio of equipment failures, injuries to railroad workers and accidents per train mile is increasing. They added that present regulations create uncertainty and are failing to stop the upward trend.

Among their requests was one asking the commission to prescribe and enforce standards for installing, inspecting and maintaining power brakes and appliances for freight and passenger trains.

Gen. Ridgway and Civil Government

It is quite natural that, this being a national election year, his belated attack (by three years in some phases) on defense policies of the Eisenhower Administration by retired Gen. Matthew Ridgway, should be causing quite a stir in various circles. Some politicians are making the most of it.

Recent installments of the Ridgway series of articles appear to confirm a suspicion that this military officer does not understand either the theory or practice of civil government; that he does not understand that in our form of government the military forces are not necessarily the last word in the spending of defense policy money. He seems to feel that the Army should have most anything it wants at any time.

As one prominent publication recently stated, there is some doubt whether Gen. Ridgway strictly an army man, appreciates the full concept of national defense, based upon the importance of strategic air power, which is something that had strong bi-partisan support in Congress and in other lines of activity both military and industrial.

Gen. Ridgway, in his first article in the Saturday Evening Post, complained that after the Armed Services had presented in 1954 their estimates of necessary force levels for incorporation in the 1955 budget, those force levels "were squeezed within the framework of present arbitrary manpower and fiscal limits, a complete inversion of the normal process." He objects to the fact that the defense bill was tailored to overall budget requirements instead of the budget being tailored to what the Army wanted.

This is too much even for another four-star officer, Gen. Carl Spaatz, who writes in Newsweek that "even if we were willing to spend the U. S. into bankruptcy" we could not mount sufficient infantry forces in Europe to stave off Red assault. Hence "what we must depend on primarily for our defense is air-atomic striking power."

Gen. Spaatz emphatically but courteously, singles out the two major flaws in Gen. Ridgway's thesis—first that the Armed Services can or should dictate to the government their own expenditures, and second that any amount of expenditure on U. S. ground forces overseas could ever produce an invulnerable line of defense. "It never can be," writes Gen. Spaatz. "We haven't enough manpower resources"—nor enough billions of dollars.

What the Eisenhower Administration has been endeavoring to do ever since it took office is to strike some kind of a balance, however tentative and contingent, between the defense requirements of the nation and its economic requirements. Gen. Ridgway regards the economic requirements as politically inspired, which of course they are to some extent, but he also regards political considerations as alien to military needs and purposes, which is a clear error.

Ridgway has never shown much talent for, or comprehension of, the science of statecraft, but it is odd that any American general should argue supremacy for the military in the fiscal affairs of a civil government. "Any military budget," notes Military Editor Hanson W. Baldwin of The New York Times, "is bound to be influenced by economic and political factors; and calculated risks, both in the military and in the economic field, result." Furthermore those calculated risks must be taken by the elected officials and representatives of the people—not by the military.

Lady-Like Comedy Difficult

NEW YORK (AP) — Practically everybody will laugh at a woman who lets down her dignity and makes a fool of herself in public.

"But if she tries to be feminine and funny at the same time," said Jean Carroll, "men and women both subconsciously resent her."

This curious quirk in human nature, she found was the biggest obstacle she met in becoming one of the nation's highest-paid comedienne.

Miss Carroll, who avoids using props in her half-hour monologues, is a quick-witted, handsome woman with gray-green eyes and who writes most of her own material.

Her good looks have been something of a handicap, and she feels that her onstage life would be easier if she were the dowdy type or even dressed that way. But she firmly refuses to.

"Men in the audience instinctively resent listening to anything clever by a woman, particularly if she appears poised and well-dressed," she said. "And the women resent her, too, because they are afraid the men will listen to her. It's a mind of jealousy in them. They keep thinking how nice it would be if they were up there on the stage and had all those men listening to them.

"Both the men and the women sit there as if grimly daring you to make them laugh.

"The task is to get them to feel superior to you, to overlook the fact you are feminine, and then to be so funny that they forget your sex altogether. You have to do it fast, too—in the first two minutes. And they can seem like a long two minutes."

Many comedienne do this, of course, by ridiculing themselves or falling back on boisterous pie-in-the-face routines. So far Jean has heroically resisted this easy way out.

"I have an aversion to seeing a woman make a buffoon of herself on the stage," she said.

Her stubbornness has paid off Jean started by winning a $5 first prize at the age of 13 in a New Britain, Conn., amateur contest. Now she earns up to $10,000 a week and has an annual income in the six-figure bracket. For the benefit of those who hate counting on their fingers, this is $100,000 plus.

By Hal Boyle

Jean has often teamed with such male counterparts as Milton Berle, Joe E. Lewis, Jack Benny, Jimmy Durante and Bob Hope.

"They don't mind working with women," she remarked. "It's all in the day's job with them."

She does admit to a slight feeling of envy for the wider freedom male comics enjoy.

"They can imitate a woman taking a bath or removing a girdle, and everyone will think it is howlingly funny.

"But the reverse isn't true. If I imitated a man taking a bath, it would be unfeminine. People would be asking each other, 'Well, how did she find that out—she's been peeking through key holes!'"

The humorous range for comedienne (at least lady-like comedienne), she said, was limited largely to such topics as household matters, family situations, progressive education, and the eternal war between men and women.

Douglas MacArthur's Birthday

As one lies here and thinks of men and events and the courses and tides of history, it comes to me that on Thursday, General Douglas MacArthur will celebrate his 76th birthday. I hope I have the date right but here I may not look anything up or telephone.

For only one hour each day I am excused from being a vegetable and thus far, there have been no untoward results. During that one free hour, I write these little essays just as I am sure a fiddler would want to run over the strings of a violin. We are all creatures of habit and for nearly 40 years now, I have informed the world on this and that and the habit is too strong to break.

To return to Douglas MacArthur, his birthday ought to be marked in some manner for this is an extraordinarily truthful man in an era of mediocre time-servers. His is a philosophy of outlook on the history and future of his country rather than an overspecialized emphasis on personal self-preservation. He is acknowledged in his own occupation to be our greatest general, perhaps the most competent military mind we have produced since Robert E. Lee; so he was kicked out by military lackies, most of whose names we have already forgotten. They may have gotten rid of MacArthur from the army but not from his place in history.

And as he remains alive, we must ask him about General Matthew Ridgway's disclosure that a report to the nation was faked and who was responsible for faking it. For MacArthur suffered much from the moral irresponsibility of the Pentagon where men become so engrossed in detail that they never think of the consequences what they do. I met General Ridgway at a dinner shortly after he returned from Korea and his conversation was all in one direction, that MacArthur had been right and the politicians in Washington all wrong and he spoke privately of how the lives of our sons were endangered because of arms shortages. Many crimes have been committed in the name of politics, or loyalty to the "Commander-in-Chief," whatever that may be in American life. But now the honest men are talking up and it is not going to be easy to answer. Nobody can answer Ridgway's charge of lying to the American people.

General Douglas MacArthur, as a military man, could not understand why he was instructed to go into a war to achieve a defeat. There was never a question of insubordination because he led his army to defeat as he had been instructed to do. But how to understand them? How to make them fit a philosophy of war? That he could not do. And so he spoke out and got fired after serving his country from West Point to a commander of a theater. He was fired like a little boy chased off the block. It was a cheap, an uncouth dismissal. It was like sticking one's tongue out at a great historic monument.

When men speak of morale in the army or clergy, or in schools or anywhere, they really speak of that quality of pride that men have in their work and their associations. The "old tie" may be a phrase for amusement but it represented just this high quality of loyalty to a service that held better than all the rules books never devised. When General Douglas MacArthur was dismissed summarily, without even a face-saving device, a blow was struck not at him but at the morale of our armed services. A noble overtone of service disappeared. It all became nothing but a job for those who learn how to stand in right, who know just what to say at the right moment, the apple-polishers.

Efficient and competent as they may be, and nobody doubts that, they lack a moral clan and their lack is conveyed all down the line to the men. A hero's breed must be heroic and these men who knifed MacArthur to please politicians were not heroes. And where are they today?

And so there he stands, as noble as ever, Douglas MacArthur, from whom has even been withheld a nominal honor, the title, "General of the Armies." On his birthday, I congratulate him that time has proved him a noble figure in a confused era.

Diet and Health

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN

Night terrors are frightening things both to youngsters suffering them and to their parents as well.

Without any warning the child suddenly sits up in bed and begins trembling and screaming in terror. Sometimes parents find their tot sitting on the floor in this condition.

Severe Form

Generally, it is a dream which has disturbed him. This disturbance might be considered a severe form of nightmare.

The youngster is bathed in sweat and sometimes points at an imaginary object which he believes is frightening him. He may clutch at you for protection, but it will be some time before he recognizes you and can be calmed.

Once he is quieted, he will fall asleep quickly and may not even remember the occurrence the next day.

The disorder is often found in children with anemia or other causes of ill health.

One Attack

The attacks may occur each night or at intervals of weeks or even months. Seldom does a youngster suffer more than one attack a night.

In cooperation with your physician you've got to find and correct whatever is disturbing the child's health. You've also got to eliminate any excitement which may be causing the disturbances.

Constipation might be a contributing factor.

Evening Meal

The child should not have any excitement before bedtime and should eat a fairly light evening meal. Also, don't permit him to keep late hours.

Cater to your child's wishes if he requests a light be left on in his room or if he demands that someone sleep in an adjoining room with the door open. This may give him a sense of security.

As for drugs, your doctor may prescribe phenobarbital, chloral or bromides at bedtime if the attacks occur regularly.

QUESTION AND ANSWER

R. S. M.: What causes the skin on a person's body to become dry?

Answer: The character of the skin varies in different individuals, depending somewhat on the amount of secretion from the fat in the glands in the skin.

Disturbances in the glands of internal secretion, such as lack of thyroid secretion, may be contributing causes for dryness of the skin.

The Nation Today

Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reds have been treating the United States like a donkey, beating it over the head with the stick of bluster, trying to lead it along with the carrot of soft talk.

Since the 1953 death of Joseph Stalin, with his perpetual growl, the Russians have switched from nasty to nice and back again, with assists from the Red Chinese. The Chinese were in the act this week.

The Russians have blown up peace hopes, and deflated them like a balloon. They have switched so much they seem to play by ear. It might be fatal to assume so.

Georgi Malenkov, who succeeded Stalin as premier, took a softer line than the old dictator. He talked of "peaceful coexistence" and "peaceful economic competition." He was bounced in favor of Nikolai Bulganin Feb. 8, 1955.

That same day Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov took the tough line again: he said the Soviets led the United States in the H-bomb race. He accused the United States of aggression. He warned the United States not to push too hard.

Meanwhile, alternately fierce and moderate, the Soviet leaders eventually joined President Eisenhower in the Geneva summit meeting. There they were so pleasant that the wistful began to think happy days were here again.

Russia dropped the carrot and picked up the stick again when Molotov went back to Geneva for the foreign ministers' meeting. He showed nothing had changed.

Then Bulganin and Communist party boss Nikita Khrushchev, just as if there had never been pleasant words at Geneva with Eisenhower, journeyed to Southern Asia, where Khrushchev denounced the West, tried to stir up trouble among the Asians.

Bulganin didn't get nasty. He played straight man to Khrushchev's tough guy. Pretty shrewd arrangement. Whenever the Russians wanted to switch back to being nice, Bulganin, who avoided name-calling, could open up a smile.

The Russians lost some ground—from a propaganda standpoint—anyway—when Eisenhower offered at Geneva his aerial inspection plan and the Soviets turned it down. It was almost certain they would when he made the offer.

They tried to offset this last week with Bulganin's offer to Eisenhower of a 20-year friendship treaty, which the President turned down, as the Russians no doubt knew he would.

But on the day Bulganin made his treaty offer Khrushchev, as if to puzzle the West a little more, suddenly began mentioning friendly relations and Eisenhower's good intentions.

The Reds, having failed to budge the United States with the treaty carrot, pulled the stick out from behind the door.

No sooner had Eisenhower rejected the friendship treaty than the Red Chinese got into the act, as they had been doing on and off all year.

Their foreign minister, Chou En-lai, threatened to take Formosa.

Mamie Is Avid Video Fan, But President 'Too Busy'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Like many another busy male citizen of the United States, President Eisenhower is not an avid viewer of television. He simply doesn't have the time.

But he is deeply interested in television and watches a variety of programs whenever he can. Available to him and Mrs. Eisenhower in various rooms of the White House living quarters are four black-and-white TV sets and one color set. They also have television sets at their farm in Gettysburg, Pa.

It would make interesting news if one could report the specific favorite programs of the President and Mrs. Eisenhower. But that's top secret. As the Eisenhowers and their official family are keenly aware, their personal likes and dislikes would attract so much public interest in certain programs that the result could be most unfair to many other programs.

Whenever possible both the President and his wife view at least one television news program in the evening. For relaxation, when time permits, the President enjoys watching a good mystery drama.

Mrs. Eisenhower, on the other hand, is an avid television watcher. She takes TV programs pretty much as they come. She enjoys music and there is one specific weekly dramatic program that is her personal pick of the many regular dramatic shows on the screen.

Naturally the Eisenhowers always are interested in seeing news program pickups of the President's televised press conferences.

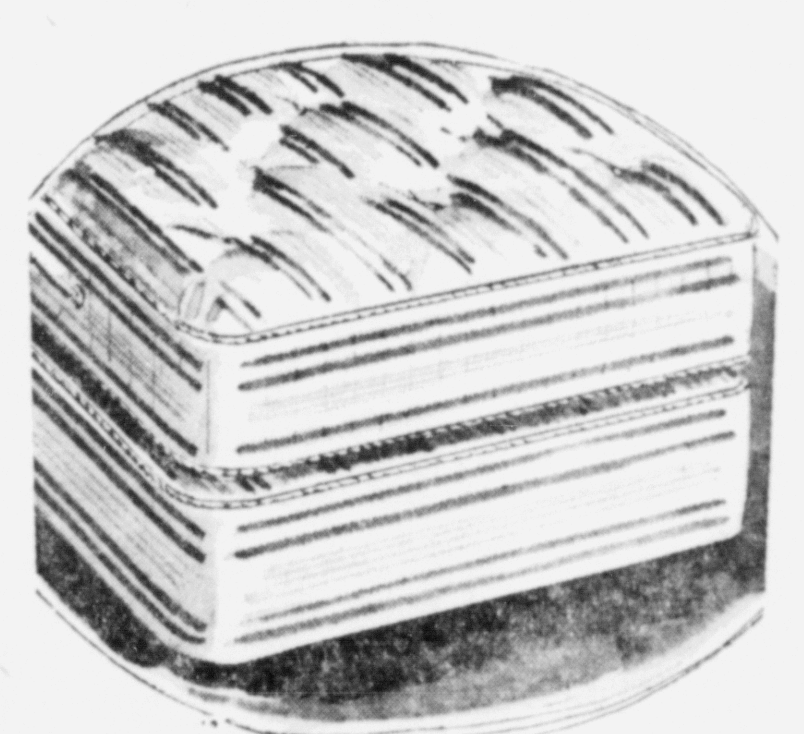

Presidential Press Secretary James C. Hagerty says the White House is greatly impressed by the numbers of letters that pour in after a televised press conference.

Gen. Ridgway and Civil Government

It is quite natural that, this being a national election year, his belated attack (by three years in some phases) on defense policies of the Eisenhower Administration by retired Gen. Mathew Ridgway, should be causing quite a stir in various circles. Some politicians are making the most of it.

Recent installments of the Ridgway series of articles appear to confirm a suspicion that this military officer does not understand either the theory or practice of civil government; that he does not understand that in our form of government the military forces are not necessarily the last word in the spending of defense policy money. He seems to feel that the Army should have most anything it wants at any time.

As one prominent publication recently stated, there is some doubt whether Gen. Ridgway strictly an army man, appreciates the full concept of national defense, based upon the importance of strategic air power, which is something that had strong bi-partisan support in Congress and in other lines of activity both military and industrial.

Gen. Ridgway, in his first article in the Saturday Evening Post, complained that after the Armed Services had presented in 1954 their estimates of necessary force levels for incorporation in the 1955 budget, those force levels "were squeezed within the framework of present arbitrary manpower and fiscal limits, a complete inversion of the normal process."

He objects to the fact that the defense bill was tailored to overall budget requirements instead of the budget being tailored to what the Army wanted.

This is too much even for another four-star officer, Gen. Carl Spaatz, who writes in Newsweek that "even if we were willing to spend the U. S. into bankruptcy" we could not mount sufficient infantry forces in Europe to stave off Red assault. Hence "what we must depend on primarily for our defense is air-atomic striking power."

Gen. Spaatz emphatically but courteously, singles out the two major flaws in Gen. Ridgway's thesis—first that the Armed Services can or should dictate to the government their own expenditures, and second that any amount of expenditure on U. S. ground forces overseas could ever produce an invulnerable line of defense. "It never can be," writes Gen. Spaatz. "We haven't enough manpower resources"—nor enough billions of dollars.

What the Eisenhower Administration has been endeavoring to do ever since it took office is to strike some kind of a balance, however tentative and contingent, between the defense requirements of the nation and its economic requirements. Gen. Ridgway regards the economic requirements as politically inspired, which of course they are to some extent, but he also regards political considerations as alien to military needs and purposes, which is a clear error.

Ridgway has never shown much talent for, or comprehension of, the science of statecraft, but it is odd that any American general should argue supremacy for the military in the fiscal affairs of a civil government. "Any military budget," notes Military Editor Hanson W. Baldwin of The New York Times, "is bound to be influenced by economic and political factors; and calculated risks, both in the military and in the economic field, result." Furthermore those calculated risks must be taken by the elected officials and representatives of the people—not by the military.

Lady-Like Comedy Difficult

NEW YORK (AP) — Practically everybody will laugh at a woman who lets down her dignity and makes a fool of herself in public.

"But if she tries to be feminine and funny at the same time," said Jean Carroll, "men and women both subconsciously resent her."

This curious quirk in human nature, she found was the biggest obstacle she met in becoming one of the nation's highest-paid comedienne.

Miss Carroll, who avoids using props in her half-hour monologues, is a quick-witted, handsome woman with gray-green eyes and who writes most of her own material.

Her good looks have been something of a handicap, and she feels that her onstage life would be easier if she were the dowdy type or even dressed that way. But she firmly refuses to.

"Men in the audience instinctively resent listening to anything clever by a woman, particularly if she appears poised and well-dressed," she said. "And the women resent her, too, because they are afraid the men will listen to her. It's a mind of jealousy in them. They keep thinking how nice it would be if they were up there on the stage and had all those men listening to them.

"Both the men and the women sit there as if grimly daring you to make them laugh.

"The task is to get them to feel superior to you, to overlook the fact you are feminine, and then to be so funny that they forget your sex altogether. You have to do it fast, too—in the first two minutes. And they can seem like a long two minutes."

Many comedienne do this, of course, by ridiculing themselves or falling back on boisterous pie-in-the-face routines. So far Jean has heroically resisted this easy way out.

"I have an aversion to seeing a woman make a buffoon of herself on the stage," she said.

Her stubbornness has paid off. Jean started by winning a $5 first prize at the age of 13 in a New Britain, Conn., amateur contest. Now she earns up to $10,000 a week and has an annual income in the six-figure

Douglas MacArthur's Birthday

As one lies here and thinks of men and events and the courses and tides of history, it comes to me that on Thursday, General Douglas MacArthur will celebrate his 76th birthday. I hope I have the date right but here I may not look anything up or telephone. For only one hour each day I am excused from being a vegetable and thus far, there have been no untoward results. During that one free hour, I write these little essays just as I am sure a fiddler would want to run over the strings of a violin. We are all creatures of habit and for nearly 40 years now, I have informed the world on this and that and the habit is too strong to break.

To return to Douglas MacArthur, his birthday ought to be marked in some manner for this is an extraordinarily truthful man in an era of mediocre time-servers. His is a philosophic outlook on the history and future of his country rather than an overspecialized emphasis on personal self-preservation. He is acknowledged in his own occupation to be our greatest general, perhaps the most competent military mind we have produced since Robert E. Lee; so he was kicked out by military lackies, most of whose names we have already forgotten. They may have gotten rid of MacArthur from the army but not from his place in history.

And as he remains alive, we must ask him about General Mathew Ridgway's disclosure that a report to the nation was faked and who was responsible for faking it. For MacArthur suffered much from the moral irresponsibility of the Pentagon where men become so engrossed in detail that they never think of the consequences what they do. I met General Ridgway at a dinner shortly after he returned from Korea and his conversation was all in one direction, that MacArthur had been right and the politicians in Washington all wrong and he spoke privately of how the lives of our sons were endangered because of arms shortages. Many crimes have been committed in the name of politics, or loyalty to the "Commander-in-Chief," whatever that may be in American life. But now the honest men are talking up and it is not going to be easy to answer. Nobody can answer Ridgway's charge of lying to the American people.

General Douglas MacArthur, as a military man, could not understand why he was instructed to go into a war to achieve a defeat. There was never a question of insubordination because he led his army to defeat as he had been instructed to do. But how to understand these orders? How to interpret them? How to make them fit a philosophy of war? That he could not do. And so he spoke out and got fired after serving his country from West Point to a commander of a theater. He was fired like a little boy chased off the block. It was a cheap, an uncouth dismissal. It was like sticking one's tongue out at a great historic monument.

When men speak of morale in the army or clergy, or in schools or anywhere, they really speak of that quality of pride that men have in their work and their associations. The "old tie" may be a phrase for amusement but it represented just this high quality of loyalty to a service that held better than all the rules books never devised. When General Douglas MacArthur was dismissed summarily, without even a face-saving device, a blow was struck not at him but at the morale of our armed services. A noble overtone of service disappeared. It all became nothing but a job for those who learn how to stand in right, who know just what to say at the right moment, the apple-polishers.

Efficient and competent as they may be, and nobody doubts that, they lack a moral elan and their lack is conveyed all down the line to the men. A hero's breed must be heroic and these men who knifed MacArthur to please politicians were not heroes. And where are they today?

And so there he stands, as noble as ever, Douglas MacArthur, from whom has even been withheld a nominal honor, the title, "General of the Armies." On his birthday, I congratulate him that time has proved him a noble figure in a confused era.

Norway Seizes 8 Red Fishing Boats

OSLO, Norway (AP) — The Norwegian submarine tender Sarpsten today seized three more Russian trawlers allegedly found fishing within Norway's four-mile territorial limit.

A navy spokesman said more naval vessels are steaming full speed for the rich herring banks off the Norwegian west coast where five Russian fishing vessels were taken yesterday and others were reported still operating today.

Norwegian authorities so far have imposed no fines and police were said to be deferring action until instructions are received from higher authorities.

How Much 'Aid' Will Russia Actually Give?

Red Charity In Current Cold War Under Study By Foreign Expert

Editor's Note: Following is the second in a series of three articles dealing with Russia's "foreign aid" program with reference to the current cold war.

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Foreign News Analyst
The Soviet Union stuck a tentative toe in the pool of economic competition with the United States. The resultant ripple caused a great deal of excitement. When the Russians weigh their chances of expanding that competition, they will find themselves wanting in many respects.

The smallness of the Soviet program of economic aid to uncommitted countries indicates the Kremlin's cautious approach. Even Soviet promises are not big.

Since World War II the United States has extended aid in loans and grants to foreign countries amounting to about 65 billion dollars. This includes economic, technical, military and United Nations assistance. Soviet loans and grants for economic aid, both to satellites and non-communist countries, have totaled about two billion. The extent of Soviet military aid to the Communist satellites is not available.

Most of that Soviet aid is part of a development since early 1954. Soviet policy shifted then to propaganda seeking to give the impression that the U.S.S.R. was ready to enter into economic, as well as political, competition with the United States for foreign friendship. Since then Moscow has concluded agreements with non-Communist countries extending a half billion dollars worth of credits.

Most of that remains on paper. The actual outlay in hard cash, including such projects as a steel mill in India and the program in Afghanistan, equals perhaps 150 million dollars. There are promises and hints of much more to come, but the performance likely will depend on many factors, including the political climate of the moment. The spigot can be turned on and off at short notice.

Trade remains more lurch than fact. Soviet trade is tiny in relation to world trade. Export is a matter of political decision. Moscow has trade agreements with 58 nations, but the question is whether it can perform in quantity or quality. There are indications Moscow uses the potential as a mask for inability to achieve the fact.

The Soviet rally into economic competition seems a weak political attempt to steal American thunder. Nations accustomed to American aid take it for granted. But the Soviet thrust is far from enough to hold any permanent initiative.

In itself, the economic drive could never be decisive in a contest with the United States. The U.S.S.R. for years is likely to remain a net importing nation. At the moment, Moscow seems to be probing, trying to determine how far it can go in this field. It is inexperienced. The United States is miles and years ahead.

Still, the political effects of such sorties on peoples in depressed areas are such that the West must come up with strong answers.

Proponents of long-term American commitments in the field of economic aid contend this would assure uncommitted countries of the continued interest of the United States — and help turn back the Soviet challenge. At the same time an argument can be made out for the contention that one Soviet aim is to stimulate the United States into a competition that will bleed the country progressively.

The Soviet Union does not give anything away. Except for the satellite countries, no grants are involved in its economic aid. The essence of the program is trade and loans on a business basis, with Moscow expecting full value for everything it offers. But this, too, has attractions for nations which insist they want to keep their self respect. (The Soviet Union asserts it does not attempt to pin nations down into alliances in return for economic assistance.)

People in the areas involved often identify their nations with the U.S.S.R. in this sense: Russia was a backward country which advanced spectacularly to the role of a leading industrial power. Soviet propaganda tries to identify their dreams with Soviet development, indicating to such people they cannot hope for full independence unless they copy Soviet ways.

In the propaganda war to come, it presumably will be the United States' business to make these people look to the West for the fulfillment of their hopes.

One Washington source who cannot be identified suggests the United States should open a drive to depict the Soviet Union as the most striking success story for American technical aid. He suggests the story be spread all over the East of how the Soviet Union imported impressive numbers of American and other western technical help in the days before World War II when the U.S.S.R. was struggling to its feet. Stalin himself can be quoted on this. Additionally, the 11 billion dollars worth of wartime lend-lease included such items as power stations, railway equipment and materials for industrial development, as well as American technical assistance on a large scale.

Tony Curtis Says American Men World's Best Dressed

HOLLYWOOD — Movie dolls are often bouncing back from Europe with views pro and con on fashions over there. Here's a switch: Tony Curtis files a report for American males.

His verdict: we dress better over here.

Tony is no slouch when it comes to male attire. He is known in the hep set as one of the sharpest cats with the cloth. He has won awards for being best dressed and is one of the few real stylists in men's clothing to arrive in Hollywood since Cary Grant, who is Tony's idol.

Tony returned recently from five months of swinging on "Trapeze" with Burt Lancaster and Gina Lollobrigida in Europe. His observation of male styles rates the countries this way:

1. Italy.
2. England.
3. France.

"But none of the countries can compare with the United States," he remarked amid the copious closets at his Beverly Hills home. "And that's not merely because our living standards are higher.

The average European may earn less than an American, but don't forget that the cost of clothing is much less over there.

"No, it's a matter of style, and the Europeans are chained to tradition. The Italians are the most adventurous. Some of their sport clothes are good looking, though not as stylish as ours. And the cut of their suits is not flattering.

"The English will occasionally wear sport clothes, but they don't have any dash to them. In town, they wear the same thing — the bowler hat and double-breasted suit. They all want to look like Sir Anthony Eden. But that style went out of date 10 years ago.

"The French are the worst dressed. The young men all wear the same uniform, as if they were in the Army. It's the double-breasted suit with narrow shoulders and pegged trousers. The outfit does nothing for them."

519 Persons Convicted In South Ohio

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — During 1955 a total of 519 persons were convicted of federal criminal charges in the southern district of Ohio which embraces 48 counties.

The district attorney, Hugh K. Martin, said today 168 persons were convicted at Columbus, 139 at Dayton and 212 at Cincinnati.

Juries acquitted 2 persons at Columbus, 3 at Dayton and none at Cincinnati. The court acquitted or dismissed 19 persons at Columbus, 3 at Dayton and 31 at Cincinnati.

"Most of such dismissals and acquittals by the court were for selective service violations and resulted from decisions in other cases rendered by the Supreme Court of the United States and the Circuit Court of Appeals," Martin said.

The most frequent crime was transporting a stolen car across a state line, with 103 convictions chalked up. There were 60 narcotics and marijuana convictions in the three courts.

"In the Dayton area the number of convictions for narcotics and marijuana violations—30—exceeds those for transportation of stolen automobiles—26—and leads the list of convictions in that area," Martin said. "In the Cincinnati area, the number of convictions for forging and altering government checks equaled that for transportation of stolen automobiles — 47 each."

The Columbus area collected $13,900 in criminal fines and penalties, the Dayton area $27,857 and the Cincinnati area $50,990.

In civil actions the amount of judgments in favor of the United States was $132,141 for the Columbus area, $14,785 for the Dayton area and $42,992 for the Cincinnati area.

Martin listed claims due the United States collected out-of-court in the Columbus area at $310,149,

Junk Mail Again Pestres Residents

WASHINGTON (AP)—"Junk mail" is again flooding the nation's residential mail boxes.

Asst. Postmaster Gen. Norman R. Abrams told a House appropriations subcommittee, in testimony released today, that the volume of advertising sent at low, third-class rates is "coming back rapidly to the point it was at the height of the junk mail controversy."

department permitted postmen to distribute unaddressed advertising at each home on their routes. There was a lot of complaint from the public, however, and advertisers were required to provide specific addresses once again.

Abrams said the volume is almost as bad as before, however.

Two Hostesses Entertain At Benefit Party

Mrs. Marvin H. Roszmann and Mrs. Byers W. Shaw, co-chairmen of the "Vanishing Bridge Parties" sponsored by the Fayette County Medical Auxiliary entertained seven tables of guests at the beautiful home of Mrs. Roszmann Tuesday evening to launch the series.

These parties which will be carried out in the three table, two table and one table series in the progressive games as in the past, are sponsored by this group and the entire proceeds will be presented to Memorial Hospital.

It is hoped by the co-chairman that the patronage of these parties will continue as in previous years which will insure a complete success.

The guests enjoyed the pleasant surroundings in the spacious rooms during the several progressions in the game of bridge with one table of Canasta also included.

Light refreshments were served by the hostesses during the evening and attractively wrapped awards in a dainty pastel pink were presented.

Those holding high scores were: Mrs. Richard Davis, first; Mrs. Paul Rosenfelds, second; Mrs. Robert Brubaker, third; Mrs. Eddie Kirk, fourth; Mrs. Faith Pearce, fifth; Mrs. Frank Dawson, sixth, and Mrs. Max Lawrence received the trophy in Canasta.

Blue Bird Group Holds Meeting

The Golden Blue Bird group of Cherry Hill School met at the school, Tuesday afternoon with Mrs. Cecil West and Mrs. James De Weese, also present.

The girls worked on miniature yarn dolls as the project, and also enjoyed a round of games.

At the close of the meeting the small hostess Joan Morton, served light refreshments.

Mrs. Woollard Is Hostess To Kensington Club

Twelve members of the Tuesday Kensington Club enjoyed the afternoon on Tuesday when they assembled at the home of Mrs. Fred D. Woollard, for their usual informal get-together.

Mrs. Woollard seated the members at the dining room table centered with a beautiful arrangement of early spring flowers of jonquils, daffodils and blue iris, for the serving of a tempting dessert course and she was assisted in the serving by Mrs. G. C. Kidner.

The afternoon was pleasantly spent in visiting over needlework.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Brandenburg and Mr. and Mrs. William McCoy of Wilmington are expected home Thursday from Washington D. C. where they attended the National Automobile Dealers' Association Convention the past few days.

Dinner Precedes Class Meeting

Mr. and Mrs. Manfred Lemaster entertained the Shepherds Bible class of First Baptist Church for the January meeting Tuesday evening which was preceded by a covered dish dinner, with twenty-eight members present.

The meeting later was opened by Mrs. Jeannette Lindsey which included Scripture reading from St. Luke, also "The Legend of the Christmas Rose" a vocal solo "In The Temple" and prayer by Mrs. Lindsey.

Mrs. Frank Reno, president, conducted the business session and following the usual reports a special report of 103 calls were given by the members.

Rev. Norman D. Renn was presented with a lovely gift from the class honoring his birthday anniversary and the business meeting was closed with prayer by Mr. Albert Caplinger.

Mrs. Richard McLean and Mrs. Myers Kimney were program leaders and Mrs. McLean opened with the reading of an article on Lincoln. She gave a short talk on "Bells For Brotherhood" and Mrs. Kimney conducted a most interesting contest, which was won by Mrs. Jeannette Lindsey.

The Lemasters had as their assisting hosts and hostesses Mr. and Mrs. Harold De Weese, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Chaney and Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Birchfield.

Banking Chiefs Disagree On Controls Need

Eisenhower Request Seen Bringing New Business Debate

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK (AP) — President Eisenhower's idea that the power to curb American folkways of buying on the cuff would be a good thing for federal money managers to have again is likely to split the business and banking worlds sharply.

Many of the members of the powerful Federal Reserve Board think it should have such standby powers to control consumer credit. But at least one president of a regional Federal Reserve Bank sees little need for it.

And some industrial leaders protest strongly against the steps the Federal Reserve Board has taken already to curb credit by making the money supply tight and its hiring cost high. They blame federal credit curbs for the slowdown in home building and see tight and costly credit as threatening to hold down sales of new cars in the months ahead.

President Eisenhower makes it clear in his economic report to Congress that present business conditions don't call for direct consumer credit controls now. But he points to the spectacular rise in consumer credits in 1955—a spree that ignored all attempts to control credit by managing the money supply — as an experience which indicates that the authority to control the terms of time-buying "would be a useful adjunct" to the government's existing means of fighting inflation.

Opposition to federal controls over credit comes from two chief sources: 1. The home building and mortgage lending fraternity, and 2. The finance companies supplying the funds and setting terms on which the citizens can buy autos, appliances or apparel. They contend the prosperity of 1955 was based to a large extent on time-buying of the output of the nation's factories and mortgage lending for home building. They argue that if they couldn't buy on time many, if not most, Americans wouldn't buy the more expensive items at all, since they find it hard to get the cash together all at one time.

As to the record total of consumer debt, now above 35 billion dollars, and the debt of about 86 billion still owned on mortgages, the finance companies and the auto makers argue that it is still in a healthy ratio to the rising national income and that the rate of defaults is very low.

This is apparently what the President refers to in saying that at present the power to curb credit need only be a standby one.

2 Salesmen Here Awarded Emblem

Paul Huff of the tire and auto accessory department and Jack Woods of the farm store of the Montgomery Ward Store of Washington C. H. have been awarded the emblem of the Ward Sales Leadership Club.

The emblem was presented to them because they were among the 100 winners in the nationwide Montgomery Ward sales contest in which 25,000 salespeople competed. The winners were determined on the basis of the best sales performance for the three-month period that ended Dec. 31.

G. L. Purple, manager of the Montgomery Ward Store here, said these quarterly sales contests have been held since 1937 and commented that competition is keen among the salespeople.

"It is an honor for this store to have a winner," Purple said, "because such winners are never possible without loyal customers."

A survey shows California has more subcontractors and suppliers for the aircraft industry than any other state — 10,314 — with Ohio second, 4,487; New York 3,582; Texas 1,615 and Connecticut 1,513.

Two Hostesses Entertain At Benefit Party

Mrs. Marvin H. Roszmann and Mrs. Byers W. Shaw, co-chairmen of the "Vanishing Bridge Parties" sponsored by the Fayette County Medical Auxiliary entertained seven tables of guests at the beautiful home of Mrs. Roszmann Tuesday evening to launch the series.

These parties which will be carried out in the three table, two table and one table series in the progressive games as in the past, are sponsored by this group and the entire proceeds will be presented to Memorial Hospital.

It is hoped by the co-chairman that the patronage of these parties will continue as in previous years which will insure a complete success.

The guests enjoyed the pleasant surroundings in the spacious rooms during the several progressions in the game of bridge with one table of Canasta also included.

Light refreshments were served by the hostesses during the evening and attractively wrapped awards in a dainty pastel pink were presented.

Those holding high scores were: Mrs. Richard Davis, first; Mrs. Paul Rodenfels, second; Mrs. Robert Brubaker, third; Mrs. Eddie Kirk, fourth; Mrs. Faith Pearce, fifth; Mrs. Frank Dawson, sixth, and Mrs. Max Lawrence received the trophy in Canasta.

Appeals Board Rules on Shop

Owner Must Move It To Back Of Lot

After a lengthy session at which representatives were heard on both for and against the application of Floyd Bell for permission of the Zoning Board of Appeals to operate a shoe repair shop in a building back of his house at 712 South Hinde Street, the board Monday night granted permission for the shop to be located on the back of the lot instead of near the middle.

Bell was represented by Rollo Marchant and Roy West, chief opponent to the location of the shop, who lives next door, was represented by Edmond S. Woodmansee.

The council room was filled to overflowing with residents of the immediate area, nearly all of whom were in favor of permitting the shop to be where Bell had established it before he made application to the Zoning Board of Appeals.

Under the ruling of the board, it will be necessary for Bell to move the shop from the present building to a garage building on the extreme rear of the lot.

Gov. Lausche Signs Special Bills

COLUMBUS (P)—Gov. Frank J. Lausche yesterday signed four bills passed by the recent special session of the Legislature to start a $150 million construction program for public buildings.

The measures set up the machinery for a $150 million bond issue approved by voters last November; provided for issuing $30 million in bonds, the maximum allowed this year; appropriated $7 million from state funds to help poor school districts build classrooms, and increase Ohio's two-cent a pack cigarette tax to three cents a pack to retire the bonds. All measures become effective March 5.

Negro Churches Plan Prayer Vigil

DAYTON (P)—On May 17, 1954, the Supreme Court made its historic ruling on school segregation. This May 17, the executive committee of the National Fraternal Council of Churches has asked for a "prayer vigil" in churches of all denominations.

The council, representing 1 Negro Protestant denominations, asked churchgoers on May 17 "to appeal to God for divine intervention as we continue daily to make use of every influence for social and economic justice."

4-H Club Activities

Members of the Busy Homemakers 4-H Club selected new officers at a meeting at the home of advisor Mrs. Robert Miller.

Mary K. West is the new president, with Maureen Smith as vice-president, Jane Whiteside as secretary, Marilyn Miller, news reporter, Nancy Grim, recreation leader and Pat Woodyard, health and safety leader and treasurer.

Pat was appointed to make the club a scrapbook.

Refreshments were served by Marilyn Miller.

Stenographers May Have To Learn How To Typewrite All Over Again

WASHINGTON (P)—Bad news, stenographers: You may have to go back to school and learn to type all over again.

But there's a bright side to it: your fingers might get a lot less tired under a new keyboard system which the government begins testing today. And your employer, the American taxpayer, in this case, stands to save a tidy sum if the new keyboard does all that's claimed for it.

Twenty-four government girls from 10 federal agencies are taking part in the four-month test. Twelve use standard typewriters. The others work out on new keyboards, which look at first glance like a stenographer's nightmare.

For instance the familiar "home row," beginning "A-S-D-F," starts out "A-O-E-U" on the new keyboard, developed by August Dvorak of the University of Washington. And the row of figures at the top goes "7-5-3-1-9-0-2-4-6-8" instead of starting at 1 or 2 and going straight on up.

All this is supposed to shift the main work load from the left hand to the right. Since most typists are right-handed, the system's backers say the result is 35 per cent more production by the average typist.

Since the government uses more than 800,000 standard machines at a cost of some $125 apiece, General Services Administration, the government's housekeeping agency figured it was worthwhile converting some machines to the new keyboard at a cost of $15 apiece and putting some girls to work trying them out.

GSA head Edmund F. Mansure dropped in yesterday for a trial run of the experiment. He shook hands with each girl and wished her well, but said:

"We're not endorsing this system. We only want to know if it works. If some other system works better, that's the one we'll want."

Your Income Tax

Editor's Note: Following is the third in a series of ten articles telling in detail how to prepare a tax return on your 1955 income.

By FRANK O'BRIEN
AP Staff Writer

After you have claimed your exemptions, the next work in filing your income tax return is the business of putting down your total income and determining how much you can deduct from it, for business-connected and personal expenses. After that, you may be able to reduce your income subject to tax further by exclusion of pay received while you were ill, or injured.

At line 5, on page 1 of Form 1040, you put down your income in 1955. Notice that you are directed to put down all income. That means, put down your total income as though no deductions had been made by your employer for federal income tax, social security, union dues, charity contributions, etc.

But in using Form 1040 you may have to go behind the scenes and do a little figuring before you put down your 1955 income. This is because business-connected expenses are deducted here.

THERE ARE FOUR TYPES of business connected expenses deductible at this point. Just what is included under each heading is set forth in detail on pages 5 and 6 of the instructions pamphlet under the title "trade and business deductions of employees." (Expenses of businessmen are not the subject here — just business expenses of employees.)

The point needing explanation is how these deductions are handled. In the case of business-connected expenses for which your employer partly or entirely reimburses you (except expenses of travel and transportation) you add the amount of expense money he paid you to your wages. Then you subtract all the law allows you to deduct, up to the amount of expense money you received. This may be less than the expense money you got, and that would mean entering at line 5 the total of your wages plus expense money you cannot deduct. But if your allowable business-connected deductions are more than the expense money you received, you can deduct the remainder among your personal expenses, on page 2 of the form, under miscellaneous expenses. In either case, attach a worksheet, showing your calculations, to your Return.

In the case of the other three types of business-connected expenses — out-of-town travel costs, other transportation, and expenses of outside salesmen—you add to your wages the amount of expense money you received, then subtract the total of your allowable expenses (whether less or more than the expense money you got). Enter the result as your total wages for the year.

This sounds complex, but it is worthwhile, because proper handling of your business-connected expenses influences your adjusted gross income (total income less business - connected expenses). And the adjusted gross income figure is the basic figure from which your tax is computed.

BUSINESSMEN AND farmers deduct their business expenses on separate schedules.

The law allows you a minimum of 10 per cent of your adjusted gross income, within certain dollar limits, as tax-free, personal expenses. You can claim 10 per cent, or the dollar maximum, in the tax computation table at the bottom of page 2 of Form 1040. The dollar limits are $1,000 on a joint return, $500 for a married person filing separately, or $1,000 for all others.

If you think your deductible expenses may come to more than that (this includes deductions of both husband and wife on a joint return) you can claim the total by itemizing. You list your itemized expenses in the special box for them on page 2 of Form 1040.

Deductible items are listed, and their handling explained, in the instructions pamphlet, beginning on page 11. There has been no change in deductions from last year. The change this year is that you can now itemize your personal expenses while using the short form.

In a nutshell, deductible expenses include contributions to churches, charities and many non-profit organizations; interest paid by you, including interest often disguised as "handling charges" in installment payment contracts, within certain limits; most non-federal tax payments; your net loss resulting from fire, storm, auto accident, shipwreck, storms or thefts; medical and dental costs over and above 3 per cent of your adjusted gross income, within dollar limits listed in the instructions (the dollar limits, but not the 3 per cent rule, apply to persons 65 or over); expenses of child care under specific limits; allowable business-connected expenses not deducted on page 1.

Expenses reimbursed by insurance benefits are not deductible, but the cost (to you) of accident and health insurance is deductible, as a medical cost.

Next comes another item that may be of considerable benefit to you. Like your business-connected expenses, it can reduce your adjusted gross income. This is the sick pay exclusion. This provision of the 1954 tax code lets you exclude (within limits) from your income amounts you received from your employer while you were away from work due to illness or injury.

HERE are the sick pay rules (more clearly and fully than set forth in the instructions):

In the case of absence from work due to injury, your sick pay exclusion begins with the first dollar paid while you were away. In the case of sickness, it begins only with your second week's sick pay, unless you were hospitalized at least one day the first week. In that case, the exclusion begins with your pay for the first day away.

It is easy to figure out the amount of your income you can set aside, tax free (exclude) as sick pay.

The top amount you can claim is $100 a week.

Therefore, if you make anything up to and including $100 a week, you can exclude all the sick pay you receive (except that the first week's pay in the case of illness—not injury—may not count). Just determine your daily rate of pay (your weekly pay divided by the number of days in your normal work week), and multiply that by the number of work days when you were absent and paid. That is your total exclusion.

Since the top rate is $100 a week, persons who earn more than $100 a week get their exclusion like this: Divide $100 by the number of days in your normal work week. That gives you your daily exclusion. Then multiply by the number of work days you were absent. That gives you your total exclusion. But remember that in the case of illness, the first week's pay may not count.

THE REVENUE SERVICE has ruled that pregnancy itself is not an illness. So if you were on paid absence due to pregnancy, that alone does not make your leave pay excludable. But if you were actually ill during any of that time, your pay for the work days you were ill is deductible.

You may have changed jobs during the year. If so, your employers may have collected more than the $84.00 maximum of Social Security (F.I.C.A.) tax. If this happened, you can claim credit for the surplus you paid at Line 5 of Form 1040, page 1. Write "F.I.C.A. tax" in the "where employed" column. If you are filing a joint return and both have this type of credit, compute and claim them separately.

Also, you may have made estimated tax payments in 1955 in addition to withholdings from your salary. You get credit for this on line 17b of Form 1040, page 1.

Persons with wage and salary income only, now have the information they need to complete the new "wage earner's short form." Next: Special Types of Income Need Special Treatment.

Appeals Board Rules on Shop

Owner Must Move It To Back Of Lot

After a lengthy session at which representatives were heard on both for and against the application of Floyd Bell for permission of the Zoning Board of Appeals to operate a shoe repair shop in a building back of his house at 712 South Hinde Street, the board Monday night granted permission for the shop to be located on the back of the lot instead of near the middle.

Bell was represented by Rollo Marchant and Roy West, chief opponent to the location of the shop, who lives next door, was represented by Edmond S. Woodmansee.

The council room was filled to overflowing with residents of the immediate area, nearly all of whom were in favor of permitting the shop to be where Bell had established it before he made application to the Zoning Board of Appeals.

Under the ruling of the board, it will be necessary for Bell to move the shop from the present building to a garage building on the extreme rear of the lot.

Gov. Lausche Signs Special Bills

COLUMBUS (AP)—Gov. Frank J. Lausche yesterday signed four bills passed by the recent special session of the Legislature to start a $150 million construction program for public buildings.

The measures set up the machinery for a $150 million bond issue approved by voters last November; provided for issuing $30 million in bonds, the maximum allowed this year; appropriated $7 million from state funds to help poor school districts build classrooms, and increase Ohio's two-cent pack cigarette tax to three cents a pack to retire the bonds. All measures become effective March 5.

Negro Churches Plan Prayer Vigil

DAYTON (AP)—On May 17, 1954, the Supreme Court made its historic ruling on school segregation. This May 17, the executive committee of the National Fraternal Council of Churches has asked for a "prayer vigil" in churches of all denominations.

The council, representing 1 Negro Protestant denominations, asked churchgoers on May 17 "to appeal to God for divine intervention as we continue daily to make use of every influence for social and economic justice."

Stenographers May Have To Learn How To Typewrite All Over Again

WASHINGTON (AP)—Bad news, stenographers: You may have to go back to school and learn to type all over again.

But there's a bright side to it: your fingers might get a lot less tired under a new keyboard system which the government begins testing today. And your employer, the American taxpayer, in this case, stands to save a tidy sum if the new keyboard does all that's claimed for it.

Twenty-four government girls from 10 federal agencies are taking part in the four-month test. Twelve use standard typewriters. The others work out on new keyboards, which look at first glance like a stenographer's nightmare.

For instance the familiar "home row," beginning "A-S-D-F," starts out "A-O-E-U" on the new keyboard, developed by August Dvorak of the University of Washington. And the row of figures at the top goes "7-5-3-1-9-0-2-4-6-8" instead of starting at 1 or 2 and going straight on up.

All this is supposed to shift the main work load from the left hand to the right. Since most typists are right-handed, the system's backers say the result is 35 per cent more production by the average typist.

Since the government uses more than 800,000 standard machines at a cost of some $125 apiece, General Services Administration, the government's housekeeping agency figured it was worthwhile converting some machines to the new keyboard at a cost of $15 apiece and putting some girls to work trying them out.

GSA head Edmund F. Mansure dropped in yesterday for a trial run of the experiment. He shook hands with each girl and wished her well, but said:

"We're not endorsing this system. We only want to know if it works. If some other system works better, that's the one we'll want."

...nnw .day .rb$y yd.! ydcbt ru b .xyz

Oops. Sorry, wrong keyboard. Should read: Well, what won't they think of next?

of the 1954 tax code lets you exclude (within limits) from your income amounts you received from your employer while you were away from work due to illness or injury.

HERE are the sick pay rules (more clearly and fully than set forth in the instructions):

In the case of absence from work due to injury, your sick pay exclusion begins with the first dollar paid while you were away. In the case of sickness, it begins only with your second week's sick pay, unless you were hospitalized at least one day the first week. In that case, the exclusion begins with your pay for the first day away.

It is easy to figure out the amount of your income you can set aside, tax free (exclude) as sick pay.

The top amount you can claim is $100 a week.

Therefore, if you make anything up to and including $100 a week, you can exclude all the sick pay you receive (except that the first week's pay in the case of illness—no injury—may not count). Just determine your daily rate of pay (your weekly pay divided by the number of days in your normal work week), and multiply that by the number of work days when you were absent and paid. That is your total exclusion.

Since the top rate is $100 a week, persons who earn more than $100 a week get their exclusion like this: Divide $100 by the number of days in your normal work week. That gives you your daily exclusion. Then multiply by the number of work days you were absent. That gives you your total exclusion. But remember that in the case of illness, the first week's pay may not count.

THE REVENUE SERVICE has ruled that pregnancy itself is not an illness. So if you were on paid absence due to pregnancy, that alone does not make your leave pay excludable. But if you were actually ill during any of that time, your pay for the work days you were ill is deductible.

You may have changed jobs during the year. If so, your employers may have collected more than the $84.00 maximum of Social Security (F.I.C.A.) tax. If this happened, you can claim credit for the surplus you paid at Line 5 of Form 1040, page 1. Write "F.I.C.A. tax" in the "where employed" column. If you are filing a joint return and both have this type of credit, compute and claim them separately.

Also, you may have made estimated tax payments in 1955 in addition to withholdings from your salary. You get credit for this on line 17b of Form 1040, page 1.

Persons with wage and salary income only, now have the information they need to complete the new "wage earner's short form."

Your Income Tax

Editor's Note: Following is the third in a series of ten articles telling in detail how to prepare a tax return on your 1955 income.

By FRANK O'BRIEN
AP Staff Writer

After you have claimed your exemptions, the next work in filing your income tax return is the business of putting down your total income and determining how much you can deduct from it, for business-connected and personal expenses. After that, you may be able to reduce your income subject to tax further by exclusion of pay received while you were ill, or injured.

At line 5, on page 1 of Form 1040, you put down your income in 1955. Notice that you are directed to put down all income. That means, put down your total income as though no deductions had been made by your employer for federal income tax, social security, union dues, charity contributions, etc.

But in using Form 1040 you may have to go behind the scenes and do a little figuring before you put down your 1955 income. This is because business-connected expenses are deducted here.

THERE ARE FOUR TYPES of business connected expenses deductible at this point. Just what is included under each heading is set forth in detail on pages 5 and 6 of the instructions pamphlet under the title "trade and business deductions of employees." (Expenses of businessmen are not the subject here—just business expenses of employees.)

The point needing explanation is how these deductions are handled. In the case of business-connected expenses for which your employer partly or entirely reimburses you, (except expenses of travel and transportation) you add the amount of expense money he paid you to your wages. Then you subtract all the law allows you to deduct, up to the amount of expense money you received. This may be less than the expense money you got, and that would mean entering at line 5 the total of your wages plus expense money you cannot deduct. But if your allowable business-connected deductions are more than the expense money you received, you can deduct the remainder among your personal expenses, on page 2 of the form, under miscellaneous expenses. In either case, attach a worksheet, showing your calculations, to your Return.

In the case of the other three types of business-connected expenses—out-of-town travel costs, other transportation, and expenses of outside salesmen—you add to your wages the amount of expense money you received, then subtract the total of your allowable expenses (whether less or more than the expense money you got). Enter the result as your total wages for the year.

This sounds complex, but it is worthwhile, because proper handling of your business-connected expenses influences your adjusted gross income (total income less business-connected expenses). And the adjusted gross income figure is the basic figure from which your tax is computed.

BUSINESSMEN AND farmers deduct their business expenses on separate schedules.

The law allows you a minimum of 10 per cent of your adjusted gross income, within certain dollar limits, as tax-free, personal expenses. You can claim 10 per cent, or the dollar maximum, in the tax computation table at the bottom of page 2 of Form 1040. The dollar limits are $1,000 on a joint return, $500 for a married person filing separately, or $1,000 for all others.

If you think your deductible expenses may come to more than that (this includes deductions of both husband and wife on a joint return) you can claim the total by itemizing. You list your itemized expenses in the special box for them on page 2 of Form 1040.

Deductible items are listed, and their handling explained, in the instructions pamphlet, beginning on page 11. There has been no change in deductions from last year. The change this year is that you can now itemize your personal expenses while using the short form.

In a nutshell, deductible expenses include contributions to churches, charities and many non-profit organizations; interest paid by you, including interest often disguised as "handling charges" in installment payment contracts, within certain limits; most non-federal tax payments; your net loss resulting from fire, storm, auto accident, shipwreck, storms or thefts; medical and dental costs over and above 3 per cent of your adjusted gross income, within dollar limits listed in the instructions (the dollar limits, but not the 3 per cent rule, apply to persons 65 or over); expenses of child care under specific limits; allowable business-connected expenses not deducted on page 1.

Expenses reimbursed by insurance benefits are not deductible, but the cost (to you) of accident and health insurance is deductible, as a medical cost.

Next comes another item that may be of considerable benefit to you. Like your business-connected expenses, it can reduce your adjusted gross income. This is the sick pay exclusion. This provision

Lions Scalp Indians Lightly, by 47 to 40

WHS Cagers Keep in Race For Crown

The Lion cagers of Washington C. H. High School stayed in the running for the South Central Ohio League championship, but they were all out of breath when they finished the game here with a hard-earned 47 to 40 victory over Hillsboro's scrapping Indians.

It was one of the most up-and-down games of the season here. The crowd that packed the WHS gym was on its collective feet most of the time with everyone screaming at the top of his lungs.

But, despite all the pandemonium, the boys on the floor never lost their sense of good sportsmanship. They played hard, and at times a bit rough, they always had a pat on the back and a friendly grin for their opponents when they came out of the melee on the floor.

That went for both teams. Play on the floor went by fits and starts, sometimes slow and deliberate and other times fast and wild.

Both teams followed a defensive strategy throughout the game. While the Indians threw up their defense perimeter around the basket, the Lions carried on an all-court press much of the game.

The relatively low scores is evidence of the tight defenses of both teams. To crack the Indian defense, the Lions took to shooting from outside the circle—and after they hit several of them, the Indians loosened up a little and they streaked through for close-in shots.

Both teams went in for ball-stealing in a big way, but the Lions were a little more successful at it.

THE SPACE between the two squads was never more than the 7-point final margin. With David Lee leading scoring in the low-point game with 14 points the Lions managed to retain a slight edge over the Indians throughout the game.

The Lions had a shooting average of 27 percent for the evening, dropping in 17 of 62 field goal attempts. The Indians had a fraction of a percent higher shooting average, bucketing 12 out of 43 tries.

At the foul line the Washington C. H. lads flipped in 13 out of 22, while the Hillsboro squad tried 26 and hit with 16.

In the Reserve game WHS was beaten by a ten-point margin, 35 to 45. Players in the game and the points scored were Welch 5, John 3, Riser 2, Southard 11, Milstead 4, Hure 2 and Burnett 2.

THE LIONS moved one notch closer to South Central Ohio League leaders Wilmington with the victory, making the WHS record now four wins and one loss. Wilmington also has only one defeat but one more victory on the records.

Hillsboro dropped one down with the loss, going into fourth place in the SCO standings.

The Lions will be meeting third place Circleville on Friday at the Circleville court. And Saturday the boys from Beaver Creek High School in Greene County will be traveling to Washington C. H. to meet the Lions.

U. S. Heavyweight Ratings Listed

NEW YORK — Heavyweights Bob Baker and Tommy (Hurricane) Jackson are ranked No. 2 and No. 3 in the February boxing ratings in Ring Magazine.

Archie Moore, light heavyweight king, is listed as No. 1 challenger to heavyweight champ Rocky Marciano. Following Baker and Jackson is Johnny Holman of Chicago, who moved up on the strength of his victory over Bob Satterfield. Cuban Nino Valdes is fifth.

WATCHING THEIR CLASSMATES in the between-games basketball exhibition put on by fifth and sixth grade boys at the Washington C. Wayne Topples Fairfield Five

Second Period Surge Clinches 76-59 Win

Good Hope's cagers went on a scoring spree in the second period of their game with Fairfield Tuesday evening and went on to whip the Madison County five, 76-59.

After a slow first period that saw Fairfield take a 13-9 lead, the Mad Antonies suddenly ran wild. They scored 26 points in that big second quarter while holding Fairfield to 3.

Ronnie Linton scored 16 of his team's 26 points in the second period and pushed his total for the game to 30.

Ferguson was high scorer for the losers with 20 points.

The Wayne boys' margin of victory was their superior shooting for the free throw ring. Each team had ten fouls called on it, but Good Hope made good on 16 out of 19 shots for 84 percent, while Fairfield hit on 5 out of 14 for 36 percent.

Both teams used a zone defense throughout the game.

The contest brought Good Hope's record to 7 wins and 8 losses. In the victory column, though, are all four of Good Hope's league games.

Good Hope also took the Reserve game, 42-18. Jay Bonecutter and Norm Kimball paced their team with 10 points apiece. Others in the game for the Mad Antonies were Smith (8), Overly (8), Butcher (4), Osborne (2) and Brown, Jenkins, Van Dyke, Garringar and Strouth.

Carter Favored To Trip Andrade

CHICAGO — Jimmy Carter, who has won and lost the light weight title three times, must prove his worth tonight against classy Cisco Andrade if he hopes to get another shot at the crown. The 10-rounder in Chicago Stadium will be the 100th fight for 32-year-old Carter, who has been idle since Oct. 28. It was then that the left-hook specialist from New York failed to regain the 135-pound championship from Wallace (Bud) Smith in Cincinnati. Carter's an 8-5 favorite over his Compton, Calif., foe. ABC will telecast at 10 p. m.

The American Dental Assn. says that Americans bought 120 million tooth brushes in 1954, a year when the country had 158 million people over two years old.

'Buck' Weaver, 64, Dies In Chicago

CHICAGO — George (Buck) Weaver, former Chicago White Sox third baseman who maintained to the end his innocence in the Black Sox baseball scandal, died yesterday at the age of 64.

Weaver, a star for the Sox from 1912 through 1920, collapsed on the sidewalk on the South Side.

Weaver fought a losing cause through the years in attempting to clear his name of charges that he and seven other Sox players conspired to throw the 1919 World Series to Cincinnati for $100,000.

Redlegs Sign Up High School Star

CINCINNATI — Curtis Flood, 18, who graduated from high school in Oakland, Calif., last Friday, has signed a contract with the Cincinnati Redlegs.

He is an outfielder. Gabe Paul, general manager, said several other major league clubs were after the youngster. The Redlegs also traded southpaw pitcher Jackie Collum back to the St. Louis Cardinals for righthanded pitcher Brooks Lawrence.

Massillon Picks Mentor Grid Pilot

MASSILLON — Lee Tressell, 30, whose Mentor High School football teams have won 34 games in a row, has been hired as head football coach of Massillon High School to replace Tom Harp.

Tressell, who was second-choice when Harp was picked to succeed Chuck Mather a year and a half ago, received a three-year contract at $6,600 a year. That was the salary he would have received at Mentor next fall and is $400 more than Harp was paid.

A native of Ada, Ohio, Tressell coached there two years following his graduation from Baldwin-Wallace College. His teams had 2-7 and 8-1 records. He went to Mentor in 1950 and his teams have lost only three games in the last five seasons. They have had 9-0 records for three years straight.

Lions Scalp Indians Lightly, by 47 to 40

WHS Cagers Keep in Race For Crown

The Lion cagers of Washington C. H. High School stayed in the running for the South Central Ohio League championship, but they were all out of breath when they finished the game here with a hard-earned 47 to 40 victory over Hillsboro's scrapping Indians.

It was one of the most uproarious games of the season here. The crowd that packed the WHS gym was on its collective feet most of the time with everyone screaming at the top of his lungs.

But, despite all the pandemonium, the boys on the floor never lost their sense of good sportsmanship. They played hard, and at times a bit rough, they always had a pat on the back and a friendly grin for their opponents when they came out of the melee on the floor. That went for both teams.

Play on the floor went by fits and starts, sometimes slow and deliberate and other times fast and wild.

Both teams followed a defensive strategy throughout the game. While the Indians threw up their defense perimeter around the basket, the Lions carried on an all-court press much of the game.

The relatively low score is evidence of the tight defenses of both teams.

To track the Indian defense, the Lions took to shooting from outside the circle—and after they hit several of them, the Indians loosened up a little and they streaked through for close-in shots.

Both teams went in for ball-stealing in a big way, but the Lions were a little more successful at it.

THE SPACE between the two squads was never more than the 7-point final margin.

With David Lee leading scoring in the low-point game with 14 points the Lions managed to retain a slight edge over the Indians throughout the game.

The Lions had a shooting average of 27 percent for the evening, dropping in 17 of 62 field goal attempts. The Indians had a fraction of a percent higher shooting average, bucketing 12 out of 43 tries.

At the foul line the Washington C. H. lads flipped in 15 out of 22, while the Hillsboro squad tried 26 and hit with 16.

In the Reserve game WHS was beaten by a ten-point margin, 35 to 45. Players in the game and the points scored were Welch 5, Johnson 9, Rider 1, Southward 11, Milstead 4, Hire 2 and Burnett 2.

THE LIONS moved one notch closer to South Central Ohio League leaders Wilmington with the victory, making the WHS record now four wins and one loss. Wilmington also has only one defeat but one more victory on the records.

Hillsboro dropped one down with the loss, going into fourth place in the SCO standings.

The Lions will be meeting third place Circleville on Friday at the Circleville court. And Saturday the boys from Beaver Creek High School in Greene County will be travelling to Washington C. H. to meet the Lions.

Wayne Topples Fairfield Five

Second Period Surge Clinches 76-59 Win

Good Hope's cagers went on a scoring spree in the second period of their game with Fairfield Tuesday evening and went on to whip the Madison County five, 76-59.

After a slow first period that saw Fairfield take a 13-9 lead, the Mad Antonies suddenly ran wild. They scored 26 points in that big second quarter while holding Fairfield to 3.

Ronnie Linton scored 16 of his team's 26 points in the second period and pushed his total for the game to 30.

Ferguson was high scorer for the losers with 20 points. The Wayne boys' margin of victory was their superior shooting for the free throw ring. Each team had ten fouls called on it, but Good Hope made good on 16 out of 19 shots for 84 percent, while Fairfield hit on 5 out of 14 for 36 percent.

Both teams used a zone defense throughout the game.

The contest brought Good Hope's record to 7 wins and 8 losses. In the victory column, though, are all four of Good Hope's league games.

Good Hope also took the Reserve game, 42-18. Jay Bonecutter and Norm Kimball paced their team with 10 points apiece. Others in the game for the Mad Antonies were Smith (8), Overly (8), Butcher (4), Osborne (2) and Brown, Jenkins, Van Dyke, Garring and Strouth.

'Buck' Weaver, 64, Dies In Chicago

CHICAGO (AP)—George (Buck) Weaver, former Chicago White Sox third baseman who maintained to the end his innocence in the Black Sox baseball scandal, died yesterday at the age of 64.

Weaver, a star for the Sox from 1912 through 1920, collapsed on the sidewalk on the South Side.

Weaver fought a losing cause through the years in attempting to clear his name of charges that he and seven other Sox players conspired to throw the 1919 World Series to Cincinnati for $100,000.

Redlegs Sign Up High School Star

CINCINNATI (AP)—Curtis Flood, 18, who graduated from high school in Oakland, Calif., last Friday, has signed a contract with the Cincinnati Redlegs.

He is an outfielder. Gabe Paul, general manager, said several other major league clubs were after the youngster. The Redlegs also traded southpaw pitcher Jackie Collum back to the St. Louis Cardinals for righthanded pitcher Brooks Lawrence.

Massillon Picks Mentor Grid Pilot

MASSILLON (AP)—Lee Tressell, 30, whose Mentor High School football teams have won 34 games in a row, has been hired as head football coach of Massillon High School to replace Tom Harp.

Tressell, who was second-choice when Harp was picked to succeed Chuck Mather a year and a half ago, received a three-year contract at $6,000 a year. That was the salary he would have received at Mentor next fall and is $400 more than Harp was paid.

A native of Ada, Ohio, Tressell coached there two years following his graduation from Baldwin-Wallace College. His teams had 2-7 and 8-1 records. He went to Mentor in 1950 and his teams have lost only three games in the last five seasons. They have had 9-0 records for three years straight.

Bosox Rookie Crop Viewed As Best Of All In Majors

By JOE REICHLER
NEW YORK (U)—Impartial observers believe the finest crop of rookies anywhere will be paraded before the Sarasota folks at the Boston Red Sox spring training camp next month.

Some of those highly prized and high priced bonus kids have "can't miss" signs tacked on to their backs. Six, all receiving $25,000 or more to sign with Boston as untied rookies, are up from Louisville.

They are outfielder Mary Keough, who tops the list with a reported $100,000; pitcher Jerry Casale, shortstop Don Buddin, second baseman Joe Tanner, catcher Haywood Sullivan and first baseman Dick Gernert, who already had a fling with Boston but is still young enough to be regarded as a major league prospect.

Others are second baseman Billy Consolo from Oakland, catcher Gerry Zimmerman from Greensboro, pitcher Frank Blumann, released from the Army last August and catcher Jim Pagliarini, signed out of a Dearborn, Mich. high school last summer.

The player generally conceded to have the best chance of breaking in with the Red Sox as a regular, however, isn't even a bonus boy. He is Frank Malone, a 26-year-old Bronx lad who was easily the best all-around third baseman in the American Assn. last year.

Malone, at Louisville, hit .310. Keough, only .29, batted .303 in

Proposed Satellite Size Is Questioned

IOWA CITY, Iowa (U)—The head of the State University of Iowa physics department says widely circulated descriptions of the size and shape of the proposed earth satellites are premature.

Prof. James Van Allen, who was named at an space research meeting at Ann Arbor, Mich., last weekend as chairman of a group studying internal instrumentation of the proposed satellites, said yesterday they might be in the form of cylinders 18 inches long, or some shape other than the recently described 30-inch sphere.

Ike To Register

GETTYSBURG, Pa. (U)—State Rep. Francis Worley says President and Mrs. Eisenhower will register as voters here Friday.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it:

One letter simply stands for another. In this example A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

A Cryptogram Quotation

Bosox Rookie Crop Viewed As Best Of All In Majors

By JOE REICHLER
NEW YORK (AP)—Impartial observers believe the finest crop of rookies anywhere will be paraded before the Sarasota folks at the Boston Red Sox spring training camp next month.

Some of those highly prized and high priced bonus kids have "can't miss" signs tacked on to their backs. Six, all receiving $25,000 or more to sign with Boston as untied rookies, are up from Louisville.

They are outfielder Mary Keough, who tops the list with a reported $100,000; pitcher Jerry Casale, shortstop Don Buddin, second baseman Joe Tanner, catcher Haywood Sullivan and first baseman Dick Gernert, who already had a fling with Boston but is still young enough to be regarded as a major league prospect.

Others are second baseman Billy Consolo from Oakland, catcher Gerry Zimmerman from Greensboro, pitcher Frank Baumann, released from the Army last August and catcher Jim Pagliaroni, signed out of a Dearborn, Mich. high school last summer.

The player generally conceded to have the best chance of breaking in with the Red Sox as a regular, however, isn't even a bonus boy. He is Frank Malone, a 26-year-old Bronx lad who was easily the best all-around third baseman in the American Assn. last year.

Malone, at Louisville, hit .310, Keough, only 20, batted .303 in at Louisville last year with 33 doubles, 14 triples, 12 homers and 67 RBIs.

Casale had a 17-11 record. Buddin is regarded as "another Vern Stephens." At Louisville, he slammed 39 doubles and 18 homers on a .292 batting average.

Sullivan, in his first full season in pro ball, batted .258 but slammed 39 extra base hits in 128 games. Zimmerman, 21, was .274 at Greensboro.

Consolo, optioned to Oakland last year after two seasons with the Red Sox, returns with a .276 mark in 159 games.

Next—Philadelphia Phillies.

Proposed Satellite Size Is Questioned

IOWA CITY, Iowa (AP)—The head of the State University of Iowa physics department says widely circulated descriptions of the size and shape of the proposed earth satellites are premature.

Prof. James Van Allen, who was named at a space research meeting at Ann Arbor, Mich. last weekend as chairman of a group studying internal instrumentation of the proposed satellites, said yesterday they might be in the form of cylinders 18 inches long, or some shape other than the recently described 30-inch sphere.

Madison Grange Plans Events

Grange Contributes To Polio Drive

New members were voted on, a contribution was made to the Polio Drive and several upcoming events were announced at a meeting Tuesday night of the Madison Good Will Grange at the Grange Hall.

The Grangers approved four candidates for membership and three proposals for candidacy. Announcement was made at the meeting that a baking contest would be held soon, with apple coffee cake as the item to be baked.

The Grange will serve lunch March 17 at the Land Race Hog Sale, it was announced. On March 17 the group will sponsor a card party.

Proceeds from a fox drive a few weeks back came to a net of $78.62.

As the program for the evening Mrs. Roscoe Whiteside and Mrs. Walter Butcher read articles on Benjamin Franklin and William McKinley, key figures in American history born in January.

Mrs. Homer Wilson and Mrs. Dwight King entertained with a piano duet.

The refreshment committee included Mr. and Mrs. Paul Shepherd, Mr. and Mrs. William Looker and Mr. and Mrs. Carl Hughes, among others.

George F. Johnson Services Are Held

Funeral services for George Franklin Johnson, 83, of Covington, Ky., who formerly resided in the Milledgeville community were held at the Neel Funeral Home in Xenia, Wednesday at 1 P. M. Interment was in the Milledgeville-Plymouth Cemetery.

Prior to the services at Xenia, services were held in the Conley Brothers Funeral Home in Covington Tuesday at 8 P. M.

Johnson, a retired employee of the L & N Railroad Co., died Sunday at his home in Covington Monday evening. He was employed as a yard foreman for 40 years and retired in 1946.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Jennie M. Johnson, a son, Myral A. Johnson of Covington, and a number of nieces and nephews.

Frankfort Man Is On Trial In Ross

Robert Burns, Jr., 23, of Frankfort, is being tried in the Ross County Common Pleas Court on a charge of second degree manslaughter growing out of the traffic death of Aaron Frye, 72, on Route 28, west of Lyndon, the night of Nov. 10, 1955.

The state seeks to prove that Burns was intoxicated at the time of the accident, and driving at excessive speed.

The case is being heard before Judge Howard Goldsberry and a jury.

Fertilizer Plant To Open Monday

Ohio Liquid Fertilizer, Inc., will open its new automatic plant in South Solon for public inspection Monday, Feb. 6.

Other features of the opening ceremonies Monday will include a talk by Richard Mannis, agronomist from Sullivan, Ill., at the community building in South Solon.

The plant will be open for inspection from 1 to 2 P. M. and Mannis' talk is scheduled for 2 o'clock. Refreshments will be served.

Studio Burglarized And Checks Stolen

Police are investigating a burglary at the Himmelsbach Studio where the intruder entered a rear window after climbing to the roof of the building back of the studio. Some checks and other papers were carried off.

The break-in occurred late in the night, and in addition to the three checks, some tax papers were stolen, and one envelope of negatives also carried off.

No money was taken by the thief.

Mrs. Diffendal In New Position

Now Clerk-Registrar At Health Offices

Mrs. Doris Diffendal today officially became the new clerk-registrar in the offices of the Fayette County Health Department.

Mrs. Doris Diffendal

She assumes the duties which since last July were performed by Mrs. Darrell Brown who recently voluntarily tendered her resignation. Mrs. Brown's work was excellently done and her resignation was received with regret by the county health board and her associates in the office.

Mrs. Diffendal takes over her new duties with every evidence of being highly qualified for the position. Upon being approached to handle this work she resigned her former position in the office of the county auditor where she had carried on her work with high efficiency for the past eight years. She left that office on January 15 in order to have a brief leave of absence before taking over her new duties.

The clerk-registrar work in the health department is of a very responsible nature requiring complete attention to handling all matters with reference to county-wide vital statistics according to state law. The position also entails handling other types of office work. This post was held by Miss Lillie Henkle for eight years before she retired from her departmental duties last July after a fine record of official service.

George E. Wiseman Dies In Columbus

George Edward Wiseman, 86, died 8:30 A. M. Wednesday at Mercy Hospital in Columbus where he had been a patient for the past week. He had been in ill health for the last year.

He spent the last ten years of his life in Columbus but had lived most of his life in the New Holland community. Born in Jackson County, he was a retired farmer.

He is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Minnie Jolly of Columbus and Mrs. Jessie McCafferty of Mt. Sterling; one son, Ephraim Wiseman of Waterloo Road, Washington C. H.; two brothers John and Thomas of Beaver and two sisters, Mrs. Floyd Bonzo of Minford and Mrs. William Kronk of Columbus.

Funeral services will be held 2 P. M. Friday at the Kirkpatrick Funeral Home in New Holland with Rev. Glenn Robinson conducting services. Burial will be in the New Holland Cemetery.

Friends may call at the funeral home after 2 P. M. Thursday.

Appellate Court Reaffirms Order To Hillsboro School

CINCINNATI (AP) — The U. S. Court of Appeals, Sixth Circuit, has affirmed its order to end segregation in Hillsboro schools.

The Hillsboro school board had asked the appellate court for a rehearing on its decision ordering U. S. District Judge John H. Druffel to direct completion of pupil integration. The board's petition was denied.

Under the appellate order, the school board would be required immediately to admit to the combined Webster-Washington elementary school in Hillsboro all Negro pupils not now attending any school, and end all segregation by next fall.

The appellate court decision overruled Judge Druffel who refused to obey the higher court.

The district judge said that Hillsboro school officials plan to abandon the all-Negro Lincoln School next September, and shift the pupils into integrated Webster and Washington schools.

THE JUDGE SAID he believed the U. S. Supreme Court's decisions on segregation left it up to the district judges when integration must be completed.

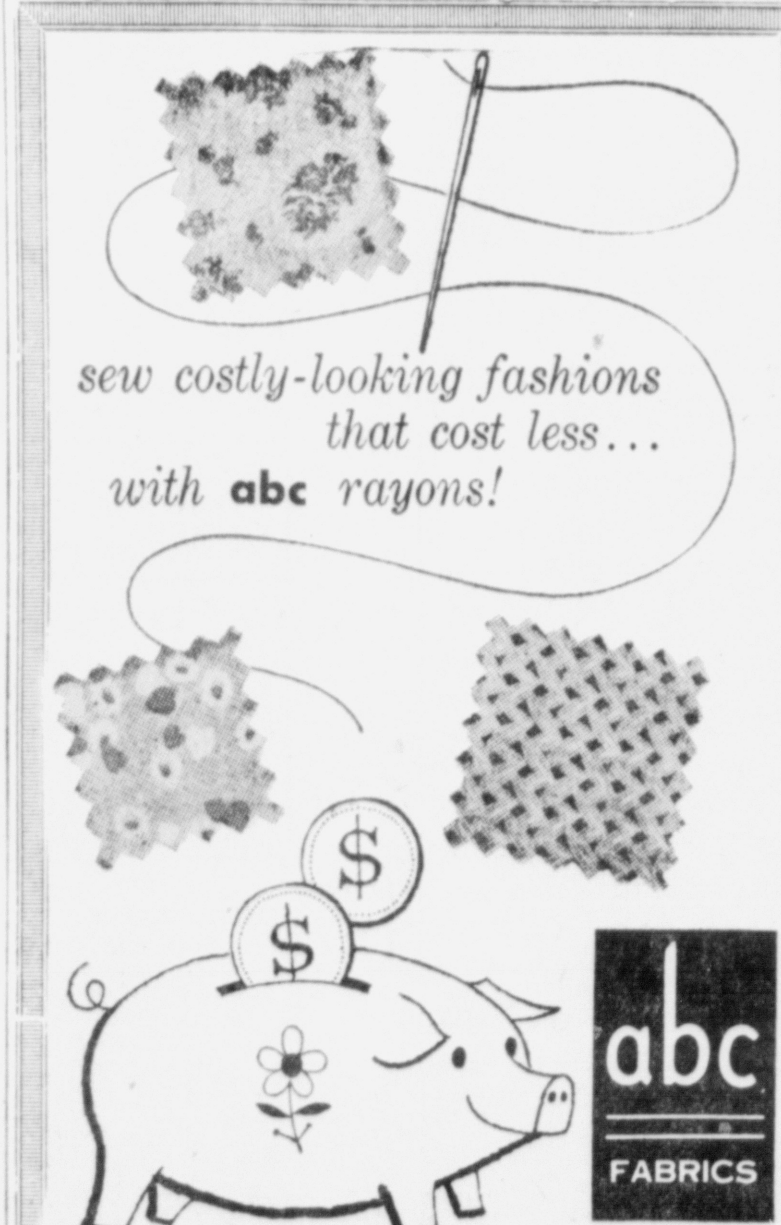

Judge Druffel said he would take the case to the Supreme Court if the appeals court refused to rehear the case.

The Hillsboro city solicitor, James D. Hapner, now has five days in which to file notice of appeal to the supreme court and request a stay of the Appellate Court decision.

4-H Club Activities

A brand new 4-H club, the C. S. Jets, has formed at the Madison Mills School. Sierra Smith has been named as president by the 17 club members.

The C. S. in the name stands for cooking and sewing. The girls decided that initials would be a bit easier than using the entire name.

The girls are going to be living up to the club name in their projects. Younger members will sew three simple articles and older girls will make three that are a bit more difficult. All will be cooking, too.

Gloria Delay was elected vice president, with Linda Seaman serving as secretary-treasurer, Linda Yeoman as reporter, Patty Bailey as health and safety officer and Joyce Smith as recreation leader. The girls will meet again Feb. 10 at the Madison Mills School.

Madison Grange Plans Events

Grange Contributes To Polio Drive

New members were voted on, a contribution was made to the Polio Drive and several upcoming events were announced at a meeting Tuesday night of the Madison Good Will Grange at the Grange Hall.

The Grangers approved four candidates for membership and three proposals for candidacy. Announcement was made at the meeting that a baking contest would be held soon, with apple coffee cake as the item to be baked.

The Grange will serve lunch March 17 at the Land Race Hog Sale, it was announced. On March 17 the group will sponsor a card party.

Proceeds from a fox drive a few weeks back came to a net of $78.92.

As the program for the evening Mrs. Roscoe Whiteside and Mrs. Walter Butcher read articles on Benjamin Franklin and William McKinley, key figures in American history born in January.

Mrs. Homer Wilson and Mrs. Dwight King entertained with a piano duet.

The refreshment committee included Mr. and Mrs. Paul Sheppard, Mr. and Mrs. William Looker and Mr. and Mrs. Carl Hughes, among others.

George F. Johnson Services Are Held

Funeral services for George Franklin Johnson, 83, of Covington, Ky., who formerly resided in the Millersville community were held at the Need Funeral Home in Xenia, Wednesday at 1 P. M. Interment was in the Millersville-Plymouth Cemetery.

Prior to the services at Xenia, services were held in the Connelly Brothers Funeral Home in Covington Tuesday at 8 P. M.

Johnson, a retired employee of the L & N Railroad Co., died Sunday at his home in Covington Monday evening. He was employed as a yard foreman for 40 years and retired in 1946.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Jennie M. Johnson, a son, Myral A. Johnson of Covington, and a number of nieces and nephews.

Frankfort Man Is On Trial In Ross

Robert Burns, Jr., 23, of Frankfort, is being tried in the Ross County Common Pleas Court on a charge of second degree manslaughter growing out of the traffic death of Aaron Frye, 72, on Route 28, west of Lyndon, the night of Nov. 10, 1955.

The state seeks to prove that Burns was intoxicated at the time of the accident, and driving at excessive speed.

The case is being heard before Judge Howard Goldsberry and a jury.

Fertilizer Plant To Open Monday

Ohio Liquid Fertilizer, Inc., will open its new automatic plant in South Solon for public inspection Monday, Feb. 6.

Other features of the opening ceremonies Monday will include a talk by Richard Mannis, agronomist from Sullivan, Ill., at the community building in South Solon.

The plant will be open for inspection from 1 to 2 P. M. and Mannis' talk is scheduled for 2 o'clock. Refreshments will be served.

Studio Burglarized And Checks Stolen

Police are investigating a burglary at the Himmelspach Studio where the intruder entered a rear window after climbing to the roof of the building back of the studio. Some checks and other papers were carried off.

The break-in occurred late in the night, and in addition to the three checks, some tax papers were stolen, and one envelope of negatives also carried off.

No money was taken by the thief. Egypt plans a new high dam on the Nile which is expected to provide water for two million acres of land reclaimed from the desert and to improve production on millions of other acres.

Courts

SUES FOR DIVORCE

Betty Louise Curry, a minor, 16 years of age, by her next friend, Adeline Rogers, has filed suit for divorce from Homer Curry 19, on claims of extreme cruelty.

The plaintiff states that she was married to the defendant in Richmond, Ind. Oct. 8, 1955, and was forced to leave him Oct. 25, 1955 because of extreme cruelty. Mrs. Curry also states that she is expecting a child and asks for hospital and medical expenses, reasonable alimony and other relief. Frank W. Thoroman of Sabina represents her.

BOND FOR SUPPORT

Billy Johns, city, arrested by Deputy Sheriff Don Thompson, in Chillicothe, and brought back here on a non-support charge, was given a hearing before Judge R. L. Brubaker, Tuesday. He was ordered to support his three minor children and to furnish $500 bond to insure their support.

The Cincinnati Workhouse is the alternative should he fail to comply with the court's order.

Johns has been in court before on similar charges.

S. A. Ringer Files For Congress Race

S. A. Ringer of Leesburg today had filed petitions to enter the race for the Republican nomination for candidate for Congress from the sixth district, which includes Fayette County.

S. A. Ringer

Ringer, an attorney and real estate agent in Leesburg, has an 86-acre farm between Leesburg and Greenfield.

Present indications are that Ringer will be one of three candidates for the Republican nomination. The other two candidates are another Highland Countian, Albert L. Daniels of Greenfield, and R. P. Walker of Portsmouth.

The seat in Congress they seek is now held by a Democrat, James G. Polk of Highland, who has announced that he will again seek his party's nomination. No other Democrat has announced plans to run for the nomination.

The nine counties in the sixth Congressional district are Fayette, Ross, Highland, Pike, Pickaw a y, Clermont, Brown, Adams and Scioto.

Weather Reduces Number of Arrests

The recent disagreeable weather has materially reduced the number of arrests here, with the result that during the last 10 days the number has been the smallest for that length of time in many months.

No arrests were made here Tuesday and the number for the week end and Monday was very light. It was like that most of the days the past week.

During the quiet periods, officers anticipate a fresh outbreak of law violations, going on the old saying that "it is always quiet just before the storm."

Mrs. Diffendal In New Position

Now Clerk-Registrar At Health Offices

Mrs. Doris Diffendal today officially became the new clerk-registrar in the offices of the Fayette County Health Department.

Mrs. Doris Diffendal

She assumes the duties which since last July were performed by Mrs. Darrell Brown who recently voluntarily tendered her resignation. Mrs. Brown's work was excellently done and her resignation was received with regret by the county health board and her associates in the office.

Mrs. Diffendal takes over her new duties with every evidence of being highly qualified for the position. Upon being approached to handle this work she resigned her former position in the office of the county auditor where she had carried on her work with high efficiency for the past eight years. She left that office on January 15 in order to have a brief leave of absence before taking over her new duties.

The clerk-registrar work in the health department is of a very responsible nature requiring complete attention to handling all matters with reference to county-wide vital statistics according to state law. The position also entails handling other types of office work. This post was held by Miss Lillie Henkle for eight years before she retired from her departmental duties last July after a fine record of official service.

George E. Wiseman Dies In Columbus

George Edward Wiseman, 86, died 8:30 A. M. Wednesday at Mercy Hospital in Columbus where he had been a patient for the past week. He had been in ill health for the last year.

He spent the last ten years of his life in Columbus but had lived most of his life in the New Holland community. Born in Jackson County, he was a retired farmer.

He is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Minnie Jolly of Columbus and Mrs. Jessie McCafferty of Mt. Sterling; one son, Ephraim Wiseman of Waterloo Road, Washington, C. H.; two brothers John and Thomas of Beaver and two sisters, Mrs. Floyd Bonzo of Minford and Mrs. William Kronk of Columbus.

Funeral services will be held 2 P. M. Friday at the Kirkpatrick Funeral Home in New Holland with Rev. Glenn Robinson conducting services. Burial will be in the New Holland Cemetery.

Friends may call at the funeral home after 2 P. M. Thursday.

Appellate Court Reaffirms Order To Hillsboro School

CINCINNATI (AP) — The U. S. Court of Appeals, Sixth Circuit, has affirmed its order to end segregation in Hillsboro schools.

The Hillsboro school board had asked the appellate court for a rehearing on its decision ordering U. S. District Judge John H. Druffel to direct completion of pupil integration. The board's petition was denied.

Under the appellate order, the school board would be required immediately to admit to the combined Webster-Washington elementary school in Hillsboro all Negro pupils not now attending any school, and end all segregation by next fall.

The appellate court decision overruled Judge Druffel who refused to obey the higher court.

The district judge said that Hillsboro school officials plan to abandon the all-Negro Lincoln School next September, and shift the pupils into integrated Webster and Washington schools.

THE JUDGE SAID he believed the U. S. Supreme Court's decisions on segregation left it up to the district judges when integration must be completed.

Judge Druffel said he would take the case to the Supreme Court if the appeals court refused to rehear the case.

The Hillsboro city solicitor, James D. Hapner, now has five days in which to file notice of appeal to the supreme court and request a stay of the Appellate Court decision.

4-H Club Activities

A brand new 4-H club, the C. S. Jets, has formed at the Madison Mills School. Sierra Smith has been named as president by the 17 club members.

The C. S. in the name stands for cooking and sewing. The girls decided that initials would be a bit easier than using the entire name.

The girls are going to be living up to the club name in their projects. Younger members will sew three simple articles and older girls will make three that are a bit more difficult. All will be cooking, too.

Gloria Delay was elected vice president, with Linda Seaman serving as secretary-treasurer, Linda Yeoman as reporter, Patty Bailey as health and safety officer and Joyce Smith as recreation leader. The girls will meet again Feb. 10 at the Madison Mills School.
